Ali found guilty in Huffman murder

Convicted killer faints when judge pronounces sentence of life in prison

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

In a dramatic scene in Hancock County's Circuit Court Thursday, convicted murderer Yildirim E. Ali, 32, of Pass Christian, fainted as Judge Robert Walker sentenced him to life in prison for the June 2002 murder of Ronnie Eugene Huffman, 50, of Bayou Phillips.

Jurors delivered a guilty verdict after the lunch break on Thursday after only a brief deliberation. Ali's mother pleaded with the court to take her instead as Ali was led away in handcuffs. Ali will not be eligible for parole until 2036, when he will be 65. Ali was represented by attorney James Davis.

Prosecutor Chris Schmidt presented a picture of a cold-blooded killer who lay in wait for Huffman at his home and murdered him for a $40 debt. But Ali told jurors that the two were well-acquainted and that a visit to collect a debt had escalated into violence, leaving him in fear of his life and with no choice but to threaten Huffman with the gun he had brought with him to Huffman's home.

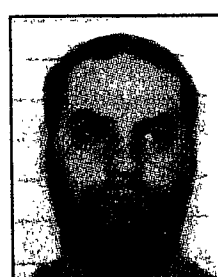

Ali said the shooting took place during a struggle over the gun on a stairway. But Schmidt said that because the gun had been fired from a distance of three-and-a-half feet away — as confirmed by Medical Examiner Paul McGarry — Ali had fired the gun with the intention of killing Huffman, not because it went off acciden-

At age 60, Waveland man enters St. Jude marathon

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER

Cyrus Rhodes of Waveland has a mission. And that is running a race for the lives of children. At age 60, many of us would think that just running at all would be an accomplishment, but last Saturday, Rhodes ran the St. Jude Memphis Marathon, a 26.2 mile course in downtown Memphis.

His goal, to raise a quarter for every heartbeat he would expend in the race, 30,336 to be exact, fell short of the $7,584 he had hoped for, but Rhodes did manage to raise over $1,500 for the cause, not bad for a first time fundraiser.

Rhodes said he was inspired by both his love of running and

Supers back P&Z board on denying request for package liquor outlet

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Supervisors last week voted unanimously to uphold a decision made by Planning and Zoning Commissioners to deny a request for a special use permit to Richard Calevro. Calevro asked commissioners that he be allowed to operate a package liquor store inside a proposed country store he plans to open on Caesar Necaise Rd. He petitioned the Board of Supervisors requesting that they overturn the planning board's decision.

Neighbors turned out in droves to protest Calevro's request to bring alcohol sales to an area historically known for its support of sobriety. Adjoining Pearl River county is a dry county.

Which Calevro stated is exactly one of the reasons that he thinks a package store would be a successful business in the area. People would come from Pearl River County to buy liquor and Hancock county would reap the tax dollars, Calevro said. Someone will make the money, he said, and it may as well be me.

But neighbors had their own ideas about the proposal. Jenette Hall said she lived on property adjoining the proposed site and would be afraid for her grandchildren to be so close to where alcohol is being sold. Hall seemed to be under the impression that Calevro was proposing a bar room.

John A. McConnell said he had lived in the area for 25 years and had seen too many serious traffic accidents caused by intoxicated drivers. He said a package store in the area would make alcohol too easily accessible in an area where people didn't want it.

Georgia McCormick said tradition shows that alcohol had never been served in the north county and that residents did not want to see that change. Laval Lee, a Baptist minister in the area, said he knew the community pretty well and a package store was not something that would fit into the area. The short term benefits of the tax sales would not outweigh the long term negative effects of such an influence, he said.

Many residents said they had come to the area to live precisely because of the lack of alcohol sales and bar rooms.

Finally, long time resident Dan Olave said, the business Calevro had originally proposed, a country store, would be hurt if he were to sell alcohol on the premises.

Another store, the now defunct Berry Patch, had gone under for the same reason, Olave said, because are residents boycotted the store when its new owners began to sell beer.

Supervisors took only minutes to decide to uphold planning and zonings findings, that the business of selling package liquor would not fit into the community's lifestyle.

"It is easy to see when something is not conducive or does not fit," said District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman. "And the town does not want hard liquor." Calevro can appeal the decision.

In other business:

• Johnny Grandison from the Corps of Engineers asked Supervisors to OK $450,000 more for a county match of Corps funds to be used to finalize a geotechnical study on the seawall project.

The money would be needed early next year Grandison said. He also told Supervisors that the Corps had a new round of 592 funding coming up which could help with many local projects such as new wastewater collection projects in the county and new sewer treatment plants proposed for the Western and Northern county.

Supers to use I-10 rubble for breakwater at Bayou Caddy

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has plans to construct a concrete rubble breakwater near the Bayou Caddy waterway.

The board proposed this project to protect the entrance to Bayou Caddy from continued siltation from wave action along the south shoreline and to serve as a near shore fishing reef structure, according to a document from the U.S. Army Engineer District in Mobile, Ala.

Approximately 1,000 feet offshore and parallel to the shoreline south of the entrance channel for Bayou Caddy, the proposed breakwater will utilize the rubble generated by the demolition of the old Interstate 10 bridge over the Jourdan River. The breakwater would have a top width of 8 feet, a bottom width of 30 feet at the mud line and is proposed to be 1,200 feet long constructed with 1:1 side slopes. According to documents, the project would not impact any submerged aquatic vegetation or oyster reefs.

The board has applied for certification from the state of Mississippi in accordance with Section 401(a)(1) of the Clean Water Act, and upon completion of the required advertising, a determination relative to certification will be made.

The applicant has certified the proposed activity complies with and will be conducted in a manner that is consistent with the State Coastal Zone Management Program. A determination relative to consistency will be made by the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources.

The Corps is soliciting comments from the public; Federal, State, and local agencies and officials; Indian Tribes; and other interested parties in order to consider and evaluate the impacts of this proposed activity. Any comments received will be considered by the Corps to determine whether to issue, modify, condition or deny a permit for this proposal. To make this decision, comments are used to assess impacts on endangered species, historic properties, water quality, general environmental effects and the other public interest factors listed above. Comments are used in the preparation of an Environmental Assessment and/or an Environmental Impact Statement pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act. Comments are also used to determine the need for a public hearing and to determine the overall public interest of the proposed activity.

Any person may request, in writing, within the comment period specified in this notice, that a public hearing be held to consider this application. Requests for public hearings shall state with particularity, the reasons for holding a public hearing.

Evaluation of the probable impacts involving deposits of dredged or fill material into waters of the United States will include the application of guidelines established by the Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The National Register of Historic Places has been consulted and no properties listed in or eligible for the National Register are known to exist which would be affected by the proposed work. This review constitutes the full extent of cultural resources investigations unless comment to this notice is received documenting that significant sites or properties exist which may be affected by this work, or that adequately documents that a potential exists for the location of significant sites or properties within the permit area. Copies of this notice are being sent to the State Historic Preservation Officer and the U.S. Department of the Interior, National Park Service, Division of Archeological Services.

Preliminary review of this application and the U.S. Department of the Interior List of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife and Plants indicates the proposed activity will not affect listed endangered or threatened species, but is located in an area designated as critical habitat for the Gulf Sturgeon.

This notice initiates the Essential Fish Habitat (EFH) consultation requirements of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act. The proposal would impact approximately 0.83 acre of estuarine substrates utilized by various life stages of various marine organisms. Our initial determination is the proposed action would not have a substantial adverse impact on EFH or Federally managed fisheries. Our final determination relative to project impacts and the need for mitigation measures is subject to review by and coordination with the National Marine Fisheries Service.

Correspondence concerning this public notice should refer to Public Notice Number MS03-03898-M and should be directed to the District Engineer, U.S. Army Engineer District, Mobile, Post Office Box 2288, Mobile, Alabama 36628-0001. Attention: Regulatory Branch, with a copy to the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality, Office of Pollution Control, Post Office Box 10385, Jackson, Mississippi 39289, and the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources, 1141 Bayview Avenue, Suite 101, Biloxi, Mississippi 39530, in time to be received not later than Jan. 9 2004.

Pioneering for reading was the theme at Waveland Elementary School's Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) day recently. RIF is part of a national reading program under the Department of Education to promote reading at schools. The program strives to teach the importance of reading to children. The program provides 75 percent of the funds to provide each child in a member school with at least three books during the school year. Each school raises their 25 percent in different ways. This year, Waveland Elementary held a book fair. The school will hold three distribution days throughout the year to distribute each book with a special theme on each day. On Friday representatives from the Hancock County Public Library and the Waveland Police Department, Mayor Tommy Longo, school superintendent Dr. Kim Stasny, assistant superintendent Debbie Cox, and many parents stopped by to read stories to the children. Other festivities included face and hand painting, demonstrations of butter making, and writing demonstrations using quill pens and ink.

Coast Chorale to perform Dec. 14

Locals look forward to $2 million project for Bay St. Louis streets

In case you missed the opportunity to hear the Coast Chorale Friday at the Bay High School Auditorium, you have an opportunity at 7 p.m. this evening at Trinity Episcopal Church in Pass Christian.

The Coast Chorale under the direction of Joy P. Matherene, will perform their Christmas Concert and they're free of charge and open to all.

The Coast Chorale has members from across the Coast and with several from Hancock County.

If you are interested in possibly singing with the group, they will have a spring 2004 concert season, contact Eric Meindel, 466-9529, or Joy Menial, 463-9215, for further information.

The Coast Chorale is a great group and they perform in several states.

It is hard to realize that it is only 11 days until Christmas, 2003.

If you have not yet done your Christmas shopping, you best get going.

Our local merchants have an array of Christmas gifts and many practical items for that someone special.

It always pays to Shop-at-Home, whenever possible.

Our local merchants appreciate your business and it also helps your local governmental agencies.

Many of us who travel the streets of Bay St. Louis are looking forward to the $2 million street resurfacing program which began on Thursday.

Final plans are being worked on a $1 million facelift for Main Street too.

Of course, city crews have been doing some initial preparations for several weeks.

The resurfacing will cover some 40 streets in Bay St. Louis and should be completed in several months.

The Main Street project will take much longer.

It will be good to drive over resurfaced roads, as many have gotten real rough for driving.

Please give the resurfacing crews an opportunity to do their jobs. The work will cause a few inconveniences, but that is what it will take to get the job done.

Program changes are a step back for Medicare system

BY DICK ARMEY
Former House Majority Leader

Washington, D.C. -- The Medicare bill being signed by President Bush today represents a missed opportunity to put Medicare back on a sustainable path to provide excellent health care for seniors. Instead, this legislation will contribute to the slow, but steady decline in the quality of care and the financial stability of the Medicare system.

Citizens for a Sound

Economy (CSE) applauds those representatives and senators who stood firm on free market principles and voted against the legislation which will make the real job of Medicare reform harder rather than easier.

Medicare's financial situation has been declining for a long period of time and the pace of that decline will escalate rapidly as the baby boomers retire. The most urgent health care need for seniors and near seniors is not a partial drug benefit. It is the urgent need to develop a Medicare system that will not require deep cuts to doctors, nurses, hospitals and home health providers in the near future to keep the system solvent.

Politicians have already begun to drain the financial resources out of Medicare in an effort to save money. This will increase in the future. Doctor payments are cut and fewer doctors now see Medicare patients. Hospital payments are cut below costs, and medical innovation slows and fewer hospital beds are provided.

This legislation does not address these problems and in fact makes them worse by adding on a large new expense to the already financially strapped system.

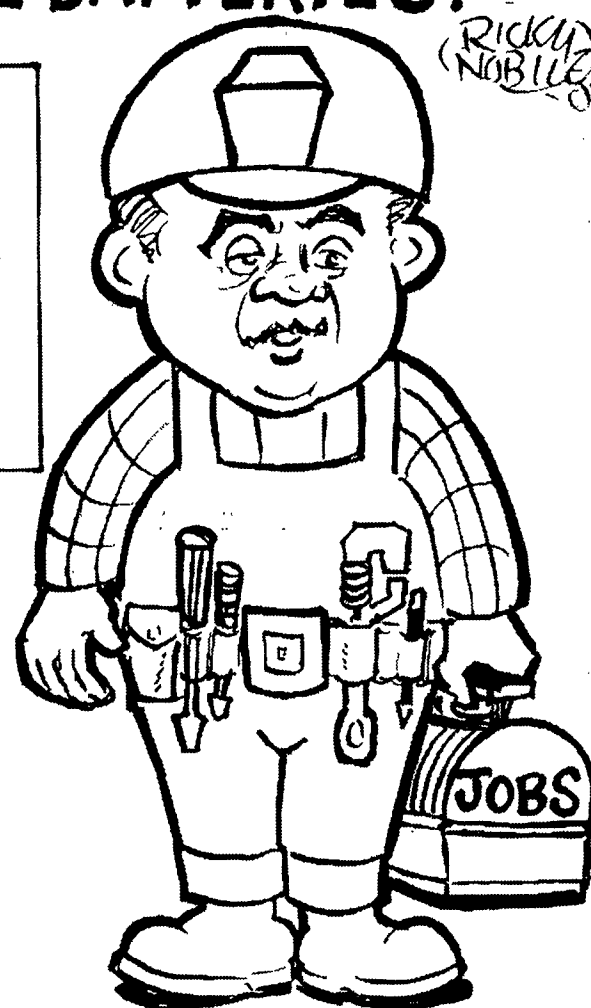

Congress needs to reform Medicare to create real choice and competition and to slow the rate of growth in Medicare spending without resorting to increased co-payments and provider cuts.

CSE had urged a "No" vote on the bill and notified

Natchez schools illustrate racial success

FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY SAM R. HALL
The Scott County Times

The entire nation took notice of Mississippi in the last few weeks as our state's largest university went about hiring the first black football coach in the Southeastern Conference.

The event was lauded as a great advancement for a state that has been characterized with Old South images of segregation, slavery and a contemporary prejudice that still plays to these and other ideas.

That hiring does play to our state's advancement when it comes to equality among the races. However, what is a better sign of a new South is what happens in individual communities.

Take Natchez for example, where a 14-year-old federal court order that dictated school boundaries and make-ups has now been lifted.

This event, a truly significant one for not only Natchez but possibly for much of the more rural areas surrounding Adams County, received little play in statewide press, much less that from national media and talking heads.

Here's what happened. In 1988, several black community leaders and student representatives filed a federal lawsuit charging that the Natchez-Adams County School District was violating desegregation laws because North Natchez High School was predominantly black and South Natchez High was majority white.

With North Natchez being the larger school, it was quite evident that the district was majority black in makeup.

The plaintiffs argued that the district was unfairly stacked against minorities. To illustrate this argument, they pointed to the fact that the district had never hired a black superintendent and the school board was majority white.

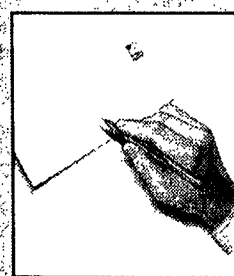

U.S. District Judge William H. Barbour Jr. in 1989 ruled that the district be divided into two elementary zones and that secondary grades be unified into a consolidated middle school for grades seven and eight and a consolidated high school for grades nine through 12.

To argue whether or not the ruling was beneficial or not from an educational standpoint is an entirely different matter. Private schools have flourished in the area, and all three are majority white.

Public schools have had to battle overcrowding, not only in the classroom but in extracurricular activities as well, where positions on varying teams are often limited and many potential members are therefore left out. That said, the advancement that has been made is significant.

According to The Natchez Democrat, in that 14-year span, the Natchez-Adams School District has hired three black superintendents and now has a school board that holds a 3-2 black majority.

State Rep. Phillip West, D-Natchez, was one of the original plaintiffs in the case, representing his son, Kareem, who was a representative of the senior class of 1990. West, who is also president of the Mississippi Legislative Black Caucus, says that now everyone has a chance to put in a vision for what the school district needs.

He and his son were the only original plaintiffs, to speak at the Dec. 5 fairness hearing that was held to entertain a motion by the school district to release them from the court order. West and his family supported the motion. Furthermore, it might be noted that the school board voted unanimously to make the motion.

Representatives and Senators that the vote would count as a Key Vote and would be reported to CSE members in their state. Key Votes are used to determine eligibility for CSE's Jefferson Award, which is given to legislators that espouse the CSE principles of limited government, lower taxes, and more freedom.

"This Medicare bill is misguided and will ultimately do more harm than good," said CSE Chairman, former House Majority Leader Dick Armey. "Unfortunately, the end result will be that many seniors will have fewer choices and will end up losing their existing drug coverage."

CSE President Paul Beckner added, "Our seniors, and the Medicare system they depend on, would be a lot better off if a few more members had the courage to vote against this legislation."

About CSE
Citizens for a Sound Economy recruits, educates, trains, and mobilizes hundreds of thousands of volunteer activists to fight for less government, lower taxes, and more freedom. Founded in 1984, CSE has 280,000 members nationwide. Former House Majority Leader Dick Armey is co-Chairman.

What is the significance? The significance is that black and white leaders in Mississippi are acknowledging that our state is moving forward.

In Natchez, black and white leaders have stepped up and said that the equality desired through the court order has been reached and now new dilemmas exist. Those dilemmas are overcrowding in and white flight from public schools.

To address this, it is going to require the district have more leverage, which it now has, and for black and white leaders to work together, which they say they are committed to do.

Perhaps it is not the head coaching position of a major university, but what is happening in Natchez is of great importance.

It will mean a better school system for the children there, better economic recruitment tools and hopefully a better future for all involved.

Public hearing set on Henderson Point permit modification Dec. 15

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) will hold a public hearing Monday, Dec. 15, 2003 at 6 p.m. in the auditorium of the Bolton State Office Building at 1141 Bayview Ave., Biloxi, where public comments will be received on the proposed modification of an individual permit issued in May 2002.

The applicant, Mississippi Gulf Fishing Banks, Inc., is requesting to modify an existing, valid permit issued by the DMR in May, 2002.

BRUCE BURROWS

Bruce Burrows had to quit school at the early age of 14 to help his mother during the Depression.

He would wake in the early morning to help stoke the fires to heat water for his mother's laundry business and work all day to put food on the table for a struggling fatherless family. He lost his father to a flu virus when he was only 10 years of age. His three brothers and two sisters were able to complete their high school education with two obtaining college degrees, the first in his family.

Although he had only an eighth-grade education, he was able to succeed in his role as husband, father and grandfather. He served in World War II, even though he had a family of two young boys and a baby boy and girl (twins). After his service in the Army, he was employed for 31 years by the U. S. Bureau of Mines and supported his family with love and devotion. He began as a bus driver picking up his fellow employees and went on to become one of five foremen overseeing the production of helium on a seven-day, 24-hour operation.

He and his devoted wife, Viola (deceased), raised four children and emphasized the value of higher education. Which resulted in one becoming an accountant overseeing loans all over the Western United States, another the chair of the management department of the University of Nebraska at Kearney, and two becoming aerospace engineers for Lockheed Martin.

He had a strong devotion to his faith. He, along with his boys, helped to construct the building for the First Baptist Church of Islington, Kan. Even though a tornado struck at the very heart of the town a few years ago, the church is as strong as it was 50 years ago. He was ordained a deacon at the age of 34 and remained active in his church until his health failed.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Viola Burrows, and his parents.

Survivors include his three sons, Larry Burrows of Pearlinton, Adrian Burrows of Santa Clara, Calif., and Dale Burrows of Greeley, Colo.; his daughter, Sandra Lebsack of Kearney, Neb.; brother, Duane Burrows of Amarillo, Texas; sister, Lucille Harris of Albuquerque, N.M.; and nine grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Visitation was held Saturday, Dec. 13, 2003, at the First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis. A prayer service was also held at the church. Interment followed in the Garden of Memory Cemetery in Bay St. Louis.

The family prefers donations to the First Baptist Church Building Fund, 141 Main Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520 or Senior Citizen of Bay St. Louis, P.O. Box 3, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis was in charge of the arrangements.

He served in the United States Air Force from 1966 to 1970. He leaves to cherish his memories his wife, Catherine Green Dotson; his mother, Velma E. Dotson of Carthage; two daughters, April Abdul-Rauf (Mahmoud) of Pass Christian and Vicki L. Hadley (Shawn) of Atlanta, Ga.; one son, Herbert O. Tate • Dotson of Pass Christian; one sister, Peggy D. Gates (Robert C.) of Carthage; two brothers, Grady Dotson (Vivian) of Jackson and Phillip R. Dotson of Memphis, Tenn.; six grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends.

Ms. Gray was born in Dallas, and moved to Tampa from New Orleans in 1987.

She was a graduate of the University of Tampa and was a certified public accountant for Robert Watkins & Co. for more than 10 years. She was of the Roman Catholic faith.

Survivors include her parents, Emmett and Charlotte Gray of Bay St. Louis; two brothers, Scott R. Gray of Bay St. Louis and Benjamin L. Gray of Tampa; and a sister, Pamela S. Wilcox of Conifer, Colo.

Business News

Past and present, Stennis plays vital role in history of flight

From a small, wood-and-fabric glider that lifted just 12 inches off the sands of Kitty Hawk, N.C., in 1903, human flight has made astonishing progress in the past century. NASA Stennis Space Center (SSC) has played a key role in this effort.

In May 1961 Pres. John F. Kennedy challenged NASA and America to go to the Moon before the decade ended. In October of that year, an area in Hancock County was selected as the site to test the launch vehicles for the Apollo program, and SSC (then the Mississippi Test Facility) was born. Its construction was the largest building project in Mississippi and second largest in the country at that time.

The center conducted the first static test firing of the Apollo/Saturn V second-stage prototype engine in April 1966, and less than a year later, began testing the first and second stages of the rocket.

This testing led to one of humankind's most phenomenal achievements when, in July 1969, Americans landed on the Moon.

Following the Apollo era, the Space Shuttle improved access to space as the first and only reusable spacecraft.

In December 1970, Roy Estess, a NASA engineer and future center director at SSC, presented a proposal to NASA Headquarters that all Space Shuttle Main Engine (SSME) testing be done at the Mississippi Test Facility. On March 1, 1971, NASA selected the facility to do all SSME sea-level testing.

The Apollo-era test stands were converted from the Apollo/Saturn V configuration to accommodate the Shuttle engines, and on June 24, 1975, the first test firing of an SSME took place. On April 12, 1981, the first Space Shuttle, Columbia, lifted off from the launch pad at Kennedy Space Center in Florida, powered by engines tested at SSC.

A major milestone in the Space Shuttle program will be achieved in the near future, when the one millionth second of hot-fire testing and flight operations of the Space Shuttle Main Engines is reached.

SSC's state-of-the-art facility is America's largest rocket test complex and is composed of a 125,000 acre buffer zone, a national asset. The A-, B- and E-Complexes are designed for propulsion testing that ranges from component to engine to stage-level. SSC's flexible, three-stand E-Complex with its seven separate test cells serves as a component test facility for future generation rocket engines. This testing includes the first reusable hydrogen-fueled advanced engine in development since the SSME along with two kerosene-fueled engines.

Full-power testing on the Linear Aerospike engine was accomplished on the A-1 Test Stand in December 1999. Technology tested on the Linear Aerospike may be used on engines that will power future spacecraft.

The Boeing Co. chose

SSC as the site to assemble and test the RS-68 engine for its Delta IV launch vehicle program. The RS-68 engine is the world's largest liquid-oxygen, liquid-hydrogen engine. Boeing's Delta IV family of expendable rockets is used to launch virtually any medium or heavy payload up to 25 tons into low-Earth orbit.

Test services are available at SSC not only for NASA but also for the Department of Defense, other government agencies, academia and industry. As NASA's Center of Excellence for Rocket Propulsion Testing, SSC's role in future space flight promises to remain as vital as it has been in the past.

Company donates to Hancock Schools

Boeing, Rocketdyne Propulsion and Power located at Stennis Space Center recently provided separate donations to fund activities taking place at the Hancock Vo-Tech Center in Kiln and Charles B. Murphy Elementary in Pearlinton. A donation of $2,000 to the Technology Applications classroom at Hancock Vo-Tech Center will give students an educational hands on experience using updated equipment and software to edit digital photography used in presentation and displays. Funds in the amount of $700 to Charles B. Murphy will be used for two outstanding activities for grades K-5. Reading is Fundamental (RIF) and "Mad Science." While RIF provides every student with a free take-home book of their choice three times each school year, "Mad Science" day will be scheduled for the spring to offer various student, family and community hands-on science activities.

Edward Jones tops in national survey of brokers

For the 11th consecutive year, Edward Jones ranked No. 1 in Registered Representative magazine's annual survey of the nation's seven largest financial-services firms. The magazine randomly selects brokers nationwide and asks them to rank their firm in various categories.

"Jones brokers take top honors again this year, with fewer complaints and more praise for their firm than any other," according to the magazine's December 2003 issue.

Edward Jones investment representatives gave the firm its highest scores in 15 of the 19 categories in which it was rated.

"With 9,300 reps tucked mostly into one-broker offices around the country, Jones was cited for its strong ethics, unvarying approach to the business and overall support of its reps," the magazine said.

The categories in the survey include the firm's work environment, quality of the firm's support, quality of the products offered and overall management of the firm. Within these categories, the firm's brokers gave Edward Jones high marks quality in research, overall ethics, ongoing training, quality of its branch office administrators and quality of client account statements. "It's always an honor to be recognized by a national publication," Craig Foster, the local Edward Jones investment representative said. "But this ranking is formed by the opinions of the investment representatives - the people who meet with clients everyday. That makes it a better measure of how we are doing for our clients, which gives this ranking even greater significance."

Foster said that he is particularly proud of the No. 1 ranking because of the number of years Edward Jones has achieved this honor. "Eleven years is no coincidence," Foster said. "We are doing things differently at Edward Jones, and we are proud of that distinction."

Edward Jones specializes in helping individual investors meet their long term financial goals and is known for its "buy-and-hold" investment philosophy.

Edward Jones, the only major financial-services firm advising individual investor: exclusively, traces its roots to 1871 and currently serves more than 6 million clients. The firm offers its clients a variety of investments, including certificates of deposit, taxable and non-taxable bonds, stocks and mutual funds.

The largest firm in the nation in terms of branch offices, Edward Jones currently has more than 9,000 offices in the U.S. and, through its affiliates, in Canada and the United Kingdom. Plans call for expansion to 10,000 branch offices by 2004.

Navy awards $816.6 million contract to shipyard

Northrop Grumman Corporation (NYSE: NOC) has announced that the U.S. Navy has awarded the company an $816.6 million contract for construction of New York (LPD 21), the fifth ship in the 12 ship LPD 17 series of San Antonio-class amphibious transport dock ships. New York will be built at Northrop Grumman Ship Systems' Avondale Operations in New Orleans, with fabrication support from three other company facilities in Pascagoula and Gulfport, and Tallulah, La.

The ship will be equipped to conduct amphibious warfare missions by embarking, transporting and landing elements of a landing force during an assault by helicopters, landing craft and amphibious vehicles.

The ship was assigned the name New York to pay tribute to the victims and heroes of the terrorist attack on the World Trade Center in New York City on Sept. 11, 2001. During a ceremony last year at the USS Intrepid Museum in New York City, then-Secretary of the Navy Gordon England announced the name of the ship.

In September 2003, more than 24 tons of World Trade Center steel was melted at a Louisiana foundry to cast the bow-stem of New York. The citizens of New York provided the steel last year for use in the ship's construction.

TConstruction of New York is set to begin in early 2004, with delivery planned by the end of 2007.

ID Team offers support for Retailers, Law Enforcement

BY GLORIA NECAISE

The importance of enforcing the state's youth tobacco access law is indisputable and the premise is extremely simple - if youth can't get tobacco, they are less likely to use it.

During the past five years, The Partnership for a Healthy Mississippi has played a major role in helping Mississippi evolve into one of the few states in the nation to have a 96 percent retailer compliance rate in keeping tobacco out of the hands of minors.

That distinction was punctuated last month by an announcement from the Mississippi Attorney General's office that Mississippi's 2003 tobacco buy-rate is 3.8 percent, the lowest in the country.

The ID TEAM, a program offered statewide by The Partnership for a Healthy Mississippi, unites retailers and the law enforcement community to help keep Mississippi's buy rate low.

And, right here in Hancock County, PATH, The Partnership for a Healthy Hancock and Pearl River County can provide program materials for use during these trainings.

"We are thrilled to offer this program to our retailers and law enforcement," explained Gloria Necaie, project director. The Partnership for a Healthy Hancock and Pearl River County. "The trainings allow everyone to understand the laws that govern the sale of tobacco to minors. The sessions also help everyone learn more about why it's so important to comply with this law."

The Partnership is recruiting law enforcement officials to conduct the trainings, and retailers who want their employees to attend. The ID Team program provides training manuals for use during workshops, as well as store signage that retailers can use to let the public know that their clerks have been trained. Clerks who attend the training sessions also receive certificates of completion.

Trainings are followed by tobacco compliance checks - more than 7,600 were conducted in 2003 alone. Benefits of the ID Team efforts aren't limited strictly to tobacco - while clerks are busy checking IDs before selling tobacco products, they are also checking them before selling beer. The practice is creating a renewed emphasis on keeping these products out of the hands of children, too.

The ID Team is just one more way that residents from all corners of the state are contributing to The Partnership's efforts to help Mississippi further pioneer one of the most important public health initiatives of our time.

If you would like program materials for these trainings, contact Gloria Necaie at (228) 586-2590.

his love of children.

"I was just drawn to the cause," said Rhodes. "I am touched by the innocence of the children who are affected by these terrible diseases. Children have such a joy in their eyes and a magic in their hearts, something we are all attracted to and want to regain ourselves."

The dollars he raised will go to help fund the hospital's research into catastrophic childhood diseases such as cancer. Since it was founded in 1962, the hospital has treated thousands of young patients from around the world. Since that time, survival rates have increased dramatically.

Out of every dollar raised to fund the hospital only four percent is used to fund administrative costs, the other 96 percent goes directly to fund current and future hospital needs and to raise additional dollars.

Besides his fundraising effort, Rhodes put a lot of physical effort into preparing for the marathon. Training is typically six days a week and Rhodes' course typically about 12 miles, from his home in Waveland to Cedar Point and back again, or to Bayou Caddy and back again, about 13 miles.

But the most important thing about running the marathon, Rhodes says is not winning, but finishing strong.

Most people hit a plateau, in runners lingo, called the wall, after about 18 or 20 miles, Rhodes said. After that you cease to draw on physical reserves and begin to draw on more inner reserves of energy and drive, he said. That is where the benefit of serious training really comes in.

Rhodes said that he recommends at least a year of training for a marathon race, though three months is considered a minimum required time. You can't really get ready in three months, he said. Rhodes has been running regularly this time around for about two years and has gone from a portly 196 pounds to a trim 156 pounds in that time.

More than the physical perks though, Rhodes said, are the mental and emotional benefits of the sport. Running requires that you keep your mind clear and focused and free of all the less positive thoughts, he said. You connect with your inner strength.

"The most important thing is that it is a decision to do something, to make the effort to do something and to put your mind, body and spirit into it."

tally in a struggle.

Another man charged in the murder as accessory-after-the-fact, Carl (Jo-Jo) Campbell, also of Pass Christian, is still awaiting trial, which is expected to take place in early February.

Ali testified that he had brought Campbell to Huffman's home as "muscle," but the man had disappeared when the scuffling moved upstairs from the downstairs entryway. Huffman was shot on the stairway leading down to a front entry. He died from a gunshot to the face which passed through his head and pierced his brain stem.

Investigator Kenny Hurt of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department headed up the investigation, along with fellow investigators John Luther, Rita Blaize-Watson and André Fizer.

New royalty crowned

BY REGINA ECKES

The tradition lives on as Z-Club representatives Bronson Mullettner and Page Harder were crowned homecoming king and queen at last week's coronation ceremony at St. Cloud University in Minnesota.

Ritsche Auditorium was packed with standing room only as the royalty candidates were seated and Page Harder, selected at the Student Showcase, sang the National Anthem to start the ceremony.

Newly crowned homecoming queen Page Harder was nervous, but not about winning. She sang the National Anthem to start the program and said if she could nail the Anthem, then everything else would be fine.

"It's not that I'm not really excited to be the queen, but I wasn't worried about that," Harder said. "It's the National Anthem. You can mess up singing any other song in the world and no one would really care, but you cannot mess up singing the National Anthem."

After Harder's name was called, she apparently started clapping, not realizing she was the new queen. She was also excited to be representing an organization, Z-Club, that has shown immeasurable support during her campaign.

Wheelchair tennis lessons offered

Robbie Sullivan, a graduate of The University of Southern Mississippi, enjoys teaching wheelchair tennis at the university's Gulf Park campus, but he has not always been an avid tennis player or fan of the sport.

To watch him play or to hear him discuss the sport, it's hard to believe that Sullivan, who has a degree in sport administration, just recently became involved in tennis.

A Crystal Springs native, Sullivan became interested in wheelchair tennis when a friend of his, Johnny McGinn, approached him at a movie theater about it. McGinn asked him if he was interested in playing wheelchair tennis. Sullivan agreed, but with much skepticism. After playing for a while, Sullivan, a paraplegic with a T-7 spinal chord injury, discovered he liked the sport and began playing regularly.

With the encouragement of McGinn, Sullivan decided to begin competing in tournaments.

That was two years ago and now Sullivan is ranked 13th nationally in Division C wheelchair tennis, winning one singles title and two doubles. He has competed in tournaments in Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, Texas and Louisiana.

It was at a tennis exhibition that Dr. Sara Jackson, associate professor at Southern Miss and director of the Toy Library and Technology Learning Center (TLC), asked Sullivan about giving wheelchair tennis lessons at the center to people with disabilities.

Sullivan said he enjoys giving lessons because it gives him a chance to go to work every day and do something he loves.

Sullivan believes it is important to increase awareness of wheelchair sports, and that TLC offering tennis lessons has had an impact in making the public aware of this sport, as well as other things TLC has to offer.

"There are people who do not know about wheelchair sports or TLC and it is important to increase awareness," said Sullivan. "It is important because if someone had not helped me, I would not have gotten into it," he said. "You never know how well you will like something until you try it."

Currently, Sullivan gives lessons on Mondays and Wednesdays. Jackson said there are plans for Sullivan to give lessons more often at TLC. Sullivan's activities are not limited to wheelchair tennis. He also plays wheelchair basketball for the Gulf Coast Hurricanes.

For more information, contact the Southern Miss Gulf Coast TLC at (228) 867-2636.

Coalition has more than one reason to celebrate

On Saturday, December 6, the Coleman Avenue Coalition had a Christmas Social to celebrate the holidays with old friends and to bring in new friends to share their vision for Coleman Avenue. This year there were many reasons to celebrate. Five new businesses came to the avenue, Mayor Tommy Longo announced a grant to fund improvements to Coleman Avenue and new faces are joining as officers on the board.

Past officers were recognized for their contributions and new officers begin their term in January, 2004. New officers are Kathy Pinn, president; Fred DeMetz, first vice-president; Scott Blackwell, second vice-president; Sue Ashman, treasurer; Mary Krapausky, recording secretary; Mary Catherine Porch, Corresponding secretary; Terri Green and Cyndi Meyer will be sharing the membership chair and Regina Bugee will continue as newsletter editor.

Chris Hartsfield Art Studio, La Mer Health Care by the Sea, Dempsey's Seafood and Steak Restaurant, Trading Places Gift Shop, and Wave Mart Gas Station and convenience Store opened this year bringing the number of businesses in the two block area to 21. The addition of the new Waveland Library and continued work on the Waveland Pier and the Community Center also contribute to Coleman Avenue's new vitality. Also, the very active American Legion Post 77 give many people to visit the avenue.

The $1.5 million dollar grant will fund infrastructure improvements such as drainage, street repairs and sidewalks. "These very necessary improvements will continue to strengthen, unify and provide a much needed facelift so that people can walk down Coleman Avenue, eat, get a haircut, shop, go to the post office, drop by the library for a book, eat again, buy a house, pay their water bill, see an attorney, visit an art gallery, eat and shop some more," said Kathy Pinn. "We are so happy. We feel energized for next Year's projects," Pinn added.

ACCESS brunch

The annual ACCESS Brunch was recently held at the home of Paulette and Frank Stewart in New Orleans. Although ACCESS has 3 offices in the greater New Orleans area, the program has many ties to the Mississippi Gulf Coast. ACCESS was incorporated in 1971 as New Life and has been serving women facing unplanned pregnancies, providing free pregnancy testing, compassionate counseling, information and referrals in addition to practical assistance such as infant layettes to those in need, without interruption since its' beginnings. ACCESS is a program of Catholic Charities Archdiocese of New Orleans which offers an array of services to over 50,000 persons annually. ACCESS is part of Catholic Charities' maternity and adoption services. Last year ACCESS served 1,079 women of whom 543 had positive pregnancy tests. Another 1,422 persons were educated by staff and volunteers through speaking engagements. The St. Vincent Maternity Clinic served 78 women and delivered 31 healthy infants. The clinic accepts Medicaid, private insurance and provides a below market package including pre-natal visits, hospital stay, delivery and post partum visits for individuals ineligible for Medicaid and without insurance. The adoption program provides home studies, infant and child placements (local and international), adoption registry services and searches. Catholic Charities is pleased to serve Mississippi residents. The success of the ACCESS/Maternity and Adoption programs depends on the generosity of donors. ACCESS is pleased to have among their donors Gulf Coast residents, Claire and Warren Haun of www.granny1.com, Jim and Patsy Bonner of The Bonner Collection, Ellis Anderson of Quarter Moon Gallery, Mrs. Clayton Hardy of Chessy's, Jenise McCardell of Clay Creations and Philippa Gillen a member of the Gulf Coast Art Association. Pictured are Claire Haun, top row at left; Alan Hardy, Jenise McCardell; front row Clayton Hardy, Patsy Bonner, and Jim Bonner. Bay's Ferry and Hawks' Rayborn lead 2003 All-Sea Coast Echo Football Team

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The high school football season has finally come to a close. The state championships have been played and trophies awarded. Schools are now fully entrenched in basketball and soccer. However, some area athletes are getting rewarded for their accomplishments on the gridiron in 2003.

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws finished the season with a 5-6 record and second consecutive trip to the state playoffs. The Bay High Tigers completed 2003 with a 5-5 record and narrowly missed an opportunity for postseason play. The Pass Christian Pirates and the Hancock Hawks both ended 2003 with 4-7 records and the Pirates advanced to the first round of the playoffs.

For the past three years, the Sea Coast Echo has chosen to bestow recognition on some of the area's finest gridiron players for their accomplishments during the season. And, 2003 isn't any different.

Leading the way on offense is the Sea Coast Echo Player of the Year Zack Ferry of Bay High. Ferry quarterbacked the Tigers to a turn around season in 2003. A year ago the Tigers were winless; however, behind the strong arm of Ferry the Tigers finished 5-5 on the season. Ferry (6-0, 170) threw for an area best 2,089 yards and 25 touchdowns. He was 135-for-282 passing and rushed for 182 yards on 67 carries and one score. Also, on the offensive first team was Tiger teammate Trevor Collier (5-11, 185), a guard on the offensive line.

Lorenzo Lewis (5-10, 170) was the receiver of the majority of Ferry's passes in 2003. The speedy Lewis had 54 catches for 1,157 yards and 15 touchdowns. Antonio Hawkins (5-11, 185), also of Bay High, was chosen as the all-purpose player. Hawkins rushed 25 times for 136 yards and two scores and had 37 receptions for 494 yards and 5 touchdowns. He also returned 12 kickoffs for 114 yards.

Hancock's Scott Nesom was tapped for first-team honors as an offensive lineman. Nesom graded out at 82% for the season. Teammate Steven Dauenhauer was chosen as a wide receiver from Hancock. In 2003, Dauenhauer caught passes for 382 yards and two touchdowns.

Both backs in the Pass Christian Pirates offensive backfield, Anthony Henderson and Jaren Bowser, were named to the first team. Anthony Henderson (6-0, 215) carried the ball 112 times for 435 yards and 7 touchdowns. Henderson also threw a touchdown pass from the running back position. Jaren Bowser (6-0, 200) rushed for a team high 501 yards on 129 carries and scored three times as a sophomore. Pirate teammate Justin Furby (6-1, 215) as picked as an offensive lineman.

St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaw linemates Nick Weinmann and Bob Bass were both picked as first-team members. Weinmann (6-1, 220) graded out at 82% for the season.

Dance With Me

In preparation for the third annual Christmas in the Big House, Christmas in the Quarters celebration on Dec. 18, fourth-graders at Second Street Elementary learned a few dance moves from professional ballroom dancers Starr Chapman and Kelly Vuyovich.

The celebration is a culminating activity sending the historical study of life on a plantation with slavery, right before the beginning of the Civil War.

One of the celebrations was a ball, held on New Year's Eve on the plantation, while the slaves celebrated with their own dance — the cake walk.

Students will enjoy foods served on the plantation for Christmas as well as the foods served in the quarters.

The fourth-graders actually

P.C. Garden Club presents new landscaping to the city

THE SEA COAST ECHO

On Dec. 4, the Pass Christian Garden Club officially presented its newly landscaped gardens at the public library to the City of Pass Christian during a ribbon cutting ceremony with Mayor Billy McDonald, club president Petie Hyman and the club's Civic Beautification Committee chairman Michelle Smith.

In attendance for the occasion at the library were members of the beautification committee, garden club members, city employees and other special guests.

As appreciation for the club's efforts for the community, Mayor McDonald presented to the club a golden trowel, and Smith picked one of the newly planted camellias and pinned it on the Mayor's shirt.

Smith said that the work could not have been accomplished without the help of the city's maintenance crew, and, therefore, for their continuing assistance with the landscaping, the garden club presented a dwarf sasanqua camellia to Mike Pavlisick, road foreman for the City of Pass Christian, and a pair of hedge clippers to the city's custodian, Roger Cotton.

Others who were recognized, in addition to the club members who had worked on the landscaping project, included Virgil Harris, president of the Friends of the Library which donated a permanent bench for the garden, and acting librarian Sally James.

The club's civic beautification projects at the Pass Christian Library were that of completely replanting the area at the east entrance to the building and the building of a fence to conceal the garbage cans there, and the replanting of the area around the fountain by the children's wing which had become overgrown, concealing the fountain.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A MIGHTY ARMY DOES NOT A VICTORY MAKE!

AS WAS POINTED OUT IN LAST WEEK'S PANEL, KING HANUN BELIEVED, WITH FOREIGN TROOPS TO BOLSTER HIS ARMY, HE WOULD BE SAFE FROM KING DAVID'S FEAR-SOME REVENGE! BUT THEY HAD NOT RECKONED WITH KING DAVID'S GENERAL, JOAB! JOAB HASTENED TO PREVENT A JUNCTION OF THE ENEMY'S TWO ARMIES. HE PUT HIS BROTHER, ABASHAI, IN CHARGE OF HALF THE FORCE OF ISRAELITES AND TOOK THE OTHER HALF TO ENGAGE THE SYRIAN HORDES. IN A SERIES OF SPECTACULAR ENGAGEMENTS, JOAB SOON HAD THE SYRIAN MERCENARIES IN FULL FLIGHT! WHEN THE AMMONITES SAW THIS, THEY ALSO FLED FROM BEFORE ABASHAI, AND SCURRIED INTO THE SAFETY OF THEIR CITY'S WALLS! (II SAM. 10)

God helps up mysteriously

"As I was about to pull into the monastery for my retreat, I suddenly became aware of the car radio which I had on at a very low volume. I was feeling so down and confused that the closing lyrics of a song grabbed me.

"Let it be, let it be, let it be, let it be; seeking words of wisdom, let it be."

"The words got my full attention, and told me exactly what I needed to hear at that moment. I knew I had to let go of all that was bugging me."

"Well, I'm awfully glad that those lyrics did something special for you," I told her. "Whatever helps us, particularly in our lowest, most vulnerable moments, has to be good for us, no matter what the source."

"However, I would be remiss if I did not clue you in on that song which gave you so much comfort and inspiration. Apparently, you were not aware of what the Beatles were doing with that song. Although the song has lyrics which sound spiritual, the Beatles had their own agenda in penning them."

"Listen to the double entendre lyrics: 'When I find myself in times of trouble Mother Mary comes to me, singing words of wisdom: Let it be.'"

Now the question is: What are these words of wisdom? "Great lyrics, apparently. Thoughtful, spiritual words, one would think."

Yet, behind the lyrics lurks the particular, personal, ax which the Beatles had to grind. Evangelists of sorts, they were proclaiming the gospel according to Mother Mary, alias marijuana, Mary Jane, cannabis sativa, pot or weed."

My friend's jaw fell, as do the jaws of by far most people who are made aware of who Mother Mary is. It is an ongoing mystery that the nature and purpose of that and some similar songs is unknown after all these years.

"But I thought Mother Mary was the Blessed Virgin, and that she comes to us, especially in times of trouble, speaking words of wisdom. I had no idea that the song had a deep, dark, ulterior meaning."

"That it does," I answered. "Down to this very day, people all over the world are trying to rationalize the recreational, indiscriminate use of marijuana. Of course, we all know of the medical use of marijuana."

"Whatever we want passionately, we will say and do anything we need to do in order to achieve as our goal. Hence, two generations have been raising the issue, proclaiming their gospel of pot and preaching its merits."

"One Toke Over the Line" was another song, heralding

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

the glories of marijuana. It was 40 years after that 1960s song before someone informed me that a toke is a deep, inhaled puff off a marijuana cigarette."

At this point, my friend looked at me wide-eyed, feeling, no doubt, that it was time for her to exhale. However, I assured her that, no matter what the intent of the song is, the lyrics served her well, as they did many others.

And so it is with many of the messengers God sends us as we wend our way through various venues, circumstances and personal relations with everyday people, where the best messengers are often the least likely.

His impetuous apostles complained to Jesus about this very issue: "Teacher, we saw someone driving out demons in your name, and we tried to prevent him because he does not follow us."

Jesus replied: "Do not prevent him. There is no one who performs a mighty deed in my name who can at the same time speak ill of me. For whoever is not against us is for us." (Mark 9:38-40.)

If competitors are good enough for Jesus, they are certainly good enough for us as well. Not necessarily an adversarial word, competitor may mean someone who is doing work parallel, even complementary to ours.

On the other hand, people engaged in activities quite opposed to our own beliefs and efforts are often God's messengers to us despite their personal beliefs and protests to the contrary. Hostile intent does not nullify a message.

In short, God frequently speaks to us through the most perverse people and the most trying conditions. "God works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform." The lyrics of that time-honored gospel hymn have been with us so long that they seem to have emanated from the Bible itself.

In ultimate irony, even the heralds and evangelists of the gospel of world secularism have become God's messengers, God's wakeup call to slumbering believers, and God's reminder how good we have it as God's children.

Cloaking themselves speciously with the U.S. Constitution and with the bewildering tangle of federal and local laws, the secularists are fighting to eradicate all mention of God and the things that belong to God.

But make book on it. The secularists are doing all believers a huge favor by their spirited struggle to hijack God from all our public places. For a change, millions of erstwhile listless people are willing to fight for their right to enjoy a public manger scene and to use freely the greetings of Christmas.

Scripture Says . . .

By Ed Young

What is the role of the Christian church pertaining to abortion, lasciviousness, same partner marriage? The word of God clearly condemns such acts. Romans 1:26, 27, 28, Exodus 20:14. These acts or a manifestation of a detouring society.

This type of culture was prevalent when Jesus walked among men and women of such thinking.

How did Jesus handle these controversial matters? Matthew writes 12:19 He shall not strive nor cry; neither shall any man hear His voice in the street.

Jesus did not disgrace nor condemn publicly. He knew they were condemning themselves inwardly with much guilt. He reaches out to them in Love.

Verse 20 of Matthew 12 "A bruised reed shall He not break, and smoking flax shall He not quench till He sent forth justice unto victory."

Those that are trapped in addictions of a lifestyle of slavery to such; do not need to be pushed further down the ladder of life. They are broken and bruised enough.

The Church of Christ must not continue its complacency; while many are on the road to destruction.

When the opportunity comes, give words of encouragement.

The church doors should be open for the needy. Those that are looking for a helping hand should know this church house welcomes them. A personal witness with much concern towards that soul, goes a long ways to such a person.

Jesus didn't come to condemn, but that the world would know of real kindness, concern, and love.

Love covers a multitude of sins.

What will people remember us by?

The "Word" for the Week

Celebrate the birth of Jesus

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

A lot of people use the name Jesus at this season of the year. Some people use the name to swear. Others apply the name to a person whom they claim was only a man. He lived a long time ago as a good example for us.

Still others say that the man Jesus became a god. They think they can become gods, too. They base their faith on the life of Satan, "You will be like God" (Genesis 3:5).

But the Jesus of the Bible is God. He is the "Mighty God" (Isaiah 9:6). When He entered the world, He took on "appearance as a man" (Philippians 2:8).

He was and is both God and man with two distinct natures in one person. So, when Jesus was born in Bethlehem, the Bible says He was "God with us" (Matthew 1:23).

Now if you do not believe that Jesus is actually God who took on human form, then you do not believe in the Jesus of the Bible. Sure, make your excuses. But the fact remains, if you do not believe that Jesus is the Creator God, then you are not trusting in the Jesus of the Bible! The Pharisees hated Jesus because he was "making Himself equal with God" (John 5:18).

If you are on the side of the Pharisees my friend, you are in trouble. I'll tell you why. Jesus came into the world as the Savior. He is a perfect Savior. How so?

First of all, He could suffer in the place of men and women because He Himself is a man. But second, because Jesus is God. His suffering and sacrifice was perfect and had infinite value!

If you do not trust in the suffering and sacrifice of this very same Jesus, there is no salvation for you. This is what the holiday season is all about.

The Neville Brothers

Nevilles coming to Magic

The Neville Brothers will bring their unique style of music to the stage at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday and Saturday December 26 & 27 at 9 p.m. Tickets are $19.95, $24.95 & $29.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

With four powerfully unique personalities, the Neville Brothers thrive on an explosive fusion of diversity and unity. The collective of talented brothers is world-famous for its embodiment of the New Orleans sound. Aaron, Art, Charles and Cyril Neville have expanded the horizons of New Orleans R&B while honoring the music's roots and tradition. Drawing on the vast resources and multiple styles of African-American music, The Neville Brothers have combined R&B, jazz, reggae, and elements of rock and Zydeco with a harmony-based funk groove all their own.

The careers of Art and Aaron Neville began in the early 50's around the street corners, on the porches and at house parties in the notorious Caliope Projects. Energetic, but with little else to do, it was only natural for them to pick up the rhythms and moods of the city they were so much a part of. Aaron is perhaps the best known of the brothers. His hits include "Tell It Like It Is" in 1966 and his duets in the 80's with Linda Ronstadt on "All My Life" and "Don't Know Much." Art first came to note well before Elvis, having recorded "Mardi Gras Mambo" with the Hawkettes in 1954. "Mardi Gras Mambo" continues to get heavy airplay and respectable sales during the local Mardi Gras festivities.

After the four put together careers separately and not having played together for eight years, the brothers united to help record the universally acclaimed "The Wild Tchoupitoulas" a year after their mother's death in 1975. They credit their uncle with getting them to join forces. "He told us that our mother and father had always wanted to see us work together as a band," Charles recalls. "He knew that if we got together as a family, it would happen." The brothers became a best-loved local attraction and in 1988, they won a Grammy with "Yellow Moon." Then in the 1990's, "Brother's Keeper" cemented their star status.

They have sold millions of record worldwide and have gold and platinum records in six different countries. They have been the featured television performers on "Good Morning America," "Today," "Oprah," "Saturday Night Live," "Letterman" and "The Tonight Show."

Gift-Giving Traditions Around the World Provide Inspiration

Perhaps you feel like you give the same old gifts year in, year out to family and friends. You've tried to get inspired but it's as fruitless as a bad fruitcake. A trip around the world might cut into your holiday funds, but taking a look at holiday traditions around the world is a great way to find gift ideas. This year turn gift giving into a lesson in diversity. Here, a melting pot of ideas that will impress your friends and family:

SOUTH KOREA

During the fall harvest (which arrives in mid-August, depending on the lunar calendar), families gather to share a meal. At this celebration, adult children give money to their parents and, at day's end, parents pack up the harvested crops for their children. "It's like our Thanksgiving," says Jiyong Ahn, 26, who spent 8 years in South Korea and now lives in River Edge, New Jersey. Pretty presentation is another lesson to be learned from South Koreans. Everything in Korea is gift-wrapped and the packaging is important, says Claudia Chung, 26, who lived in South Korea until age 5 and now lives in New York City. "You buy a cake and the wrapping is prettier than the cake itself," she adds. "They even put ribbons on a box of pizza." Remember, it's all about the packaging, so get out the bows and streamers, even if you decide to give Mom and Dad cash this year.

A TRIP AROUND THE WORLD might cut into your budget, but taking a look at holiday traditions around the world is a great way to find gift ideas.

CHINA

Using red wrapping paper and envelopes will delight those in China, who think the color brings good fortune and wards off evil.

Traditionally on the Chinese New Year, people exchange red envelopes filled with money. But, even if ensconced in red, a clock is an inappropriate gift for someone who is Chinese.

The English word for clock sounds like the Chinese word for death, so when you give someone a clock, he might think you are hexing him, warns Gladys Cheng, 23, of San Gabriel, California, who lived in Hong Kong until she was 8.

"Giving 'time' is like predicting death," she says. "If I give you a clock or watch, it's like I'm saying that you're going to die soon."

ISRAEL

Every December, Jews around the world celebrate Hanukkah, the festival of lights or celebration of the Macabees' victory over the Greeks, who wanted the Jews to give up their culture and faith in favor of a Hellenistic life in 166 B.C.

After the Macabees won the war, they needed to rededicate their temple but only had enough oil for one day. Miraculously, the oil lasted eight days. As a result, Jews today light candles on the menorah for each of Hanukkah's eight nights and often they exchange gifts. Originally, Jews gave monetary presents to teach children about sharing and in Israel that sentiment remains.

Parents often give their children "gelt," which are coin-shaped chocolates wrapped in gold foil. Potato latkes and jelly doughnuts are the holiday's signature foods should you be invited to a Hanukkah celebration. The goal of the giver should be to provide a sweet thought as opposed to a fancy or expensive gift.

PORTUGAL

In Portugal, and in other parts of Europe, handmade gifts are often seen as the most sincere. Although Christmas is the most popular time of year to exchange gifts, most people bring homemade baked goods or knitted tablecloths, shawls or blankets whenever visiting someone's home, says Portuguese American Helder Gil, 26, of Washington, D.C. Even celebrities, including Julia Roberts, have taken up Portuguese habits like knitting, proof that even old-fashioned hobbies can be chic.

How to Keep Your Holidays From Going 'Up in Smoke'

Winter has arrived, full of opportunities for celebration, and that means more cooking, decorating and entertaining. However, nearly two thirds of all residential fires also occur during the winter months, according to the National Fire Prevention Association (NFPA), resulting in billions of dollars in property damage and thousands of injuries and deaths each year. Holiday candles are one of the leading causes of these fires.

"Many fires occur when holiday decorations, such as centerpieces, contact a lit candle. That's why it's important to consider fire safety as part of your seasonal decorating routine," says Marty Ahrens, a fire analysis specialist at NFPA. "Remember — every lit candle is an open flame."

Winter fires can also start from other sources, including holiday lights, portable heating devices or fireplaces. However, there are precautions that homeowners can take to keep home fires burning safely.

"The fact is, many of these fires are preventable if the proper precautions are taken," says Bob Smith, chief claim officer for MetLife Auto & Home. "To help avoid a tragedy, it's important to review the basics of fire safety. It only takes a few minutes and it could save a life."

NEARLY TWO THIRDS OF ALL RESIDENTIAL FIRES occur during the winter months. However, there are precautions that homeowners can take to help safeguard their property — and their loved ones.

HOLIDAY FIRE PREVENTION TIPS

When it comes to seasonal decorations, there are many ways for your holidays to go "up in smoke" — literally. If you celebrate the season with a live Christmas tree, select one that is fresh and water it regularly. Keep it away from heat sources and exits. If you use an artificial tree, make sure it's flame-resistant.

Never burn a discarded Christmas tree, wreath or branches in your fireplace. A Christmas tree can be very oily and may damage your fireplace. More important, dry trees burn hot and fast, and often release sparks. Just one spark could ignite a carpet or window coverings.

With plenty of electric lights and decorations set to illuminate the holidays, it's important to remember not to overload wall outlets and extension cords. Use a power strip where you can. If you must use an extension cord, be sure it is appropriate for your lighting — that is, do not use an indoor extension cord to run exterior lights, or a heavy appliance cord to power lights inside of your home. You should also only purchase UL-approved lights and never use frayed or damaged strings, or mix indoor and outdoor lights. Always remember to unplug your holiday lights (inside and outside of your house) at bedtime and before you leave home.

FIREPLACE AND WOOD-STOVE SAFETY TIPS

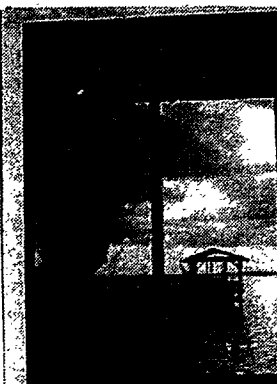

Keep a tight-fitting screen on your fireplace and obtain a professional inspection annually before use. You should also have your chimney cleaned on a regular basis to remove any debris.

If you have a wood-burning stove, make sure there is ample clearance between the stove and any combustible materials. Burn only dry, well-seasoned wood, and dispose of the ashes in a closed metal container outside the house. Do not burn trash in the stove — this can start a chimney fire. Finally, never let a wood fire burn unattended or overnight.

With any type of heater, such as an electric space heater or portable kerosene heater, use common sense. Always keep the heater away from flammables and — although it may be tempting, especially in snow-prone areas — never accelerate the drying of clothes by placing them on top of the heater. Think twice and use a drying rack instead. Finally, have your heater serviced often.

Holiday Shopping Tip

If you or someone you will be shopping with uses a wheelchair, think about the layout of the stores you plan to visit, then make a shopping list that reflects that layout. This way, you will always have an idea of where you are going and how to get there easily. You might also call ahead to ask a store manager for a personal shopper. It can not only save you energy, but allow you to really enjoy the experience, even if you already have a companion. Another idea is to head to the mall or department store early in the morning or mid-day, when they are likely to be less crowded and busy.

Light Up Your Home This Season

Forget spring: winter is the best time of year for home improvement projects. More Americans host guests at their homes during the holidays than any other time of the year, making winter the perfect time to dress up a home to impress guests.

Mark Roush, a lighting designer with Philips Lighting Company, points out that the key to making guests feel at home this winter is by making a house warm, secure and dynamic — elements that can be easily created with light.

"Whether it's the quality of your light source or the strategic placement of light points in a room, the small details make your guests feel at home," says Roush. "A well-lighted house lets your friends and family know that you care about their comfort."

Roush suggests that homeowners consider both the exterior and interior of their home when decorating with light. He offers a number of easy-to-perform, inexpensive lighting tips:

OUTDOOR

Daylight-saving time is gone so make sure your lights stay on. Nothing screams "disrepair" like a home with burnt-out light bulbs. Use compact fluorescent light bulbs — they last five to seven years — throughout the year to ensure that your lamppost, garage or front door stay lighted during those dark winter months.

Help your guests navigate with a bright walkway. When lighting walkways and driveways, focus the light toward the path. Illuminating the actual surface increases safety and aesthetics. Lantern-style fixtures may be popular, but they put little to no light on the sidewalk itself.

Highlight your landscaping with a floodlight. With the right light, landscaping can look just as stunning in the evening as it does during the day. For a typical tree, place lights to illuminate the canopy from underneath. This creates highlights and texture by lighting through the patches of foliage. Or, create a "moonlight" effect by placing lights high in the tree aimed at the ground.

INDOOR

Add luster to Thanksgiving dinner by replacing your chandelier's dull incandescent bulbs with sparkling halogen flame bulbs. Philips Halogena flame bulbs are cased in faceted glass, which causes the light to refract and reflect off the chandelier. This creates a dazzling sparkle above your dinner table.

THE RIGHT INDOOR and outdoor lighting can make your home — and your holiday guests — feel warm and secure.

Make your kitchen look bigger and brighter. The right light may not make your guests stop crowding one another for a second helping of stuffing, but it will make your kitchen feel larger than it actually is.

Install fluorescent bulbs above your kitchen cabinets to bounce warm-colored light off your ceiling, creating an artificial sky that opens the room.

Make your New Year's Eve party shine. In social situations, people tend to gather in areas that have one of two elements: food and light. Create pockets of light throughout the party area to ensure that your guests keep moving and mingling.

Showcase your prized pieces of art. The crisp white light of a halogen bulb brings out the color and texture of your favorite artwork. Create a visual focus by aiming an adjustable downlight or track light equipped with a halogen spot. Whether it's through strategically-placed lighting or something as simple as a bulb upgrade, small lighting details can make all the difference when putting your home on display this winter. A trip to your local home or hardware store can help you put these tips into action for the holiday season.

Did You Know ... ?

During Advent in the 11th century, scenes called mysteries, including one about Paradise, were very popular. A tree decorated with red apples symbolized the tree of Paradise.

During the 15th century, the faithful began to put up trees in their own houses on December 24, the feast day of Adam and Eve. However, the first Christmas tree as we know it, but without lights still, appeared in Alsace in 1521.

It was introduced in France by the Princess Hélène de Mecklembourg who brought one to Paris after her marriage to the Duke of Orleans.

By the 18th century, the custom of decorating a Christmas tree was well established in Germany, France and Austria. In 1841, Prince Albert (originally from Germany), husband of Queen Victoria, set up a Christmas tree at Windsor Castle in England. From the royal court, the custom of Christmas trees spread quickly to the middle class and then to working people.

Holiday Travellers: Protect Your Homes

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

During the holiday season burglaries are on the rise and vacationers should use extra precautions, according to the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt on Monday said, "The holiday season in this area, as well as most others, is the time burglaries seem to increase every year.

"One of the reasons is because so many residents vacation during the holiday season."

Hurt said just the past weekend, there were seven burglaries reported in the county.

Among the many hints for vacationers include; leave several lights on in residence, (time delays are good for this), have an alarm system, tell trusted neighbors you will out of town and ask them to keep a lookout while you are away, have someone check your house on a regular basis, do not let mail and newspapers pile up. You can call the sheriff's office too, and we will make extra patrols though your neighborhood, Hurt suggested.

"One of the most important things for a resident, is to make a recording of everything in their home. Remember to mark items, make a list of make and serial numbers of items. If possible, make a video of all furnishings, TV sets, etc. Many times we recover burglary items and they are hard for owners to identify," Hurt added.

It is also a good to take photographs of such items as jewelry, silverware, guns, etc., when stolen this helps in identifying them, Hurt added.

A good list needs to be kept in a safe place, such as a safety deposit box, or relative's home.

"During the Christmas season, many people place their Christmas trees in their front window. This looks nice, but it is an invite for burglars. When they see a Christmas tree, they think presents are under the tree. The stealing of Christmas presents is popular at this time of year," Hurt stated.

Neighbors can help each other by reporting suspicious vehicles in your area. If possible, get license plate numbers, types of vehicle, and the vehicle's color. Some of the burglaries happen in day time when residents are working, Hurt said.

The sheriff's department can be reached at 228-467-5101, or 601-798-8555.

Santa says don't upset your elf this Christmas - make sure your home is protected from burglars while you're away.

Save on Holiday Travel

Holiday travel preparation may not always include advanced booking, but planning is a must if you're considering a "great escape" this holiday season.

Holiday specific deals are offered throughout the year. So, if you know where you want to go early, it's a good idea to keep an eye out for sales on airfare and lodging. If you're able to recognize a deal, act quickly to take advantage of money-saving opportunities.

Following are some ideas on how to best plan your special getaway this holiday season:

- If possible, maintain flexibility on your travel dates and destination.
- Don't push the time limits given the recent changes in fare rules and regulations. According to www.Travelocity.com, missing a flight may be more costly than simply waiting for the next one.

- Look for low-price guarantees, Web specials, loyalty program deals and packages for greater savings on lodging. However, be sure to read any and all fine print before you commit, as some deals are non-refundable.

- Last-minute getaway packages are becoming increasingly available. To ensure you've found the best package, be sure to check what is and isn't included, such as air, hotel, airport transfers and rental cars.

Cultural Traditions Give Children Lifelong Memories of Great Holidays

Since traditional ideas about race, prejudice and social values were challenged during the 1960s, there has been a steady growth of interracial relationships and interracial children in America. Research by the U.S. Census Bureau indicates that the number of children living in mixed-race families has been increasing during the past two decades. There are an estimated 700,000 multicultural families and almost 5 million multicultural children in the United States, according to statistics from the Ohio State University Family and Consumer

Five ways to share cultural traditions with young children

When you practice cultural traditions, you are making memories your child will treasure for a lifetime, and you will enjoy the special bond that follows. Parents as Teachers suggests five ways to share cultural traditions with young children:

1. Sing traditional lullabies to your baby.
2. Participate in cultural celebrations as soon your child is born.
3. Learn folk tales from your culture, and tell them to your child.
4. Visit older relatives on a regular basis. Encourage them to share cultural practices from their childhood.
5. Make an album of family pictures illustrating cultural traditions, and look at it often with your child.

Sciences program.

Such diversity can have many benefits for children who experience two cultures in their own home; however, most parents have strong feelings about how they want to raise their children and how their children should behave — a fact which can create stressful situations for parents who come from different backgrounds.

"[Remember that] your spouse or parenting partner has a cultural background, too, and may have different traditions," says Jane Kostelc, child development specialist at Parents as Teachers National Center, an early childhood parent education program based in St. Louis. "Blending cultural perspectives to nurture your child is an important part of becoming a family," she says.

Enrich children's lives with cultural traditions. These traditions are what bond a family to their heritage by reflecting ethnic, racial or national backgrounds.

According to Parents as Teachers, learning about your family's cultural heritage can give children a sense of identity that extends beyond the immediate family by helping them to realize that they are part of a larger community. And helping children understand their own heritage is the first step to teaching tolerance for others. "Traditional celebrations provide an opportunity and a context for making those cultural connections," Kostelc says.

It is essential that your children understand both parents' traditions, so it's important to make an effort to bring both cultures into the home. A simple way to incorporate two sets of traditions in your child's life is to read folk tales from both cultures and talk about what you learned from each story. Connecting with grandparents or older relatives is another great way to promote your child's social and emotional development.

Also, look to opportunities for children to take part in the traditions of other cultures within the community and discuss about how the celebrations differ. Holidays are a great time to find cultural activities in the community, but remember that cultural learning can occur at any time of the year.

Blending cultural perspectives can be tricky, but practicing both parents' traditions will open your child's world and provide her with lifelong memories.

Parents as Teachers National Center offers free information about sharing cultural traditions online at www.patnc.org or by calling (866) PAT4YOU.

Santa, Around the World

To millions of children all over the world who celebrate Christmas, no other symbol of the holiday fills them with such joy as Santa Claus.

This legendary figure supposedly flies around the world in his sleigh filled with toys. He drops down the chimney delivering gifts to good girls and boys, and is a favorite of children, no matter what country they live in. Santa Claus, a jolly, stout man with a twinkle in his eye, rosy-red cheeks and a cheerful laugh, is the American adaptation of the European legend of Saint Nicholas. He wears a bright red suit trimmed with white fur, a long red cap and shiny black boots.

In England, he wears the very same outfit, but there he's called Father Christmas. In France, children refer to him as Père Noël, which means Father Christmas. He wears a long red robe and white fur hat with wooden shoes. In Switzerland we see another variation on Santa. His name is Saint Nicholas, and he wears a long white robe and a tall pointed hat called a miter. There are numerous other counterparts of Santa Claus across the globe, including the German Kris Kringle, the Italian Befana, the Swedish Jultomten and Russia's Babouschka. Though he may look a bit different and be called many names, to children of all countries his message is the same. They peek out the windows and hope to catch a glimpse of this special man as he flies through the sky, delivering gifts for boys and girls to enjoy on Christmas Day.

Parents: Give the Gift of a College Education

For parents and family members who desire to be practical this holiday season, the solution may be to purchase a 529 plan, a state-sponsored, tax-advantaged savings plan that can help families and individuals save for higher education.

The Mississippi Affordable College Savings program (MACS), gives families a great choice for a holiday gift this season. "By opening a MACS account for the child in your life this holiday season, you will be giving a gift that last a lifetime," said Peyton Prospero, Mississippi State Treasurer.

MACS covers tuition and other qualified college expenses such as room and board at any of Mississippi's higher education institutions and at colleges nationwide.

According to the College Board, tuition at public and private colleges is outpacing inflation, rising approximately 40% in just the last decade. Families are therefore urged to open a MACS account as soon as possible to take advantage of long-term investing and tax benefits, as investments grow free from federal and Mississippi state income taxes.

What's unique about MACS is that contributions of up to $10,000 ($20,000 for families filing jointly) for families filing individually are deductible from Mississippi state income taxes.

MACS allows families of all income levels to open an account with a minimum investment of $25 ($15 through payroll deduction) and a maximum account balance limit of $235,000.

The program also offers generous federal gift and estate tax advantages of up to $55,000 (110,000 for families filing jointly) divided over a five-year period for those filing individually.

MACS offers families three investment options—Guaranteed, Managed Allocation, and 100% Equity Fund.

To enroll in MACS contact The Mississippi College Savings office of the State Treasury at 1 (800) 486-3670, online at www.collegesavingsms.com, or contact Barry Simmons, CSM Director, at 601-359-5255.

 TIAA-CREF Tuition Financing, Inc. is the program manager for the MACS program and 11 other state-sponsored 529 plans distributed by Teachers Personal Investors Services, Inc. For more information about 529 plans, please read the particular state's Disclosure booklet carefully. Principal and Investment returns are not guaranteed or insured and will fluctuate based upon a number of factors, including general financial market conditions.*

If you are not a Mississippi resident or if you have taxable income in another state, you should consider whether that other state plan offers a 529 plan with favorable state income tax or other benefits that are not available if you invest in the Mississippi 529 plan.

Games Supercharge Kids' Skills

It has long been acknowledged by education experts that there is a strong link between play and learning for young children, especially in the areas of literacy and social and memory skills.

"Parents and educators have been asking me to suggest sound, nonviolent developmental games for children starting from age 3," says Bob McDuff, an educational expert and inventor of the popular McWiz and McWiz Junior games. "At an early age like 3, 4 or 5, it's important that kids develop certain specific skills that will help them in their learning process. And games that provide such educational value in this age range are few and far apart."

McDuff wanted to fill a void in this all-important age category. "I wanted to create a game that is designed to help children develop several areas of their learning process, all while having fun."

Just in time for the holiday season, McWiz Games has introduced a new collection of six educational games for youngsters age 3 and up. Called Memo-Lingo, the games make great gift ideas for parents and grandparents who are looking for nonviolent, educational games that enable youngsters to develop their mental and motor skills.

Everyone knows and loves the game "Memory." This collection is an adaptation of the classic game with a few extra twists. "The Memo-Lingo collection of games helps stimulate a child's memory, and memory is fundamental to learning," says McDuff, who spent 24 years in the classroom.

Aside from sharpening their memory skills, youngsters learn about different subjects, and furthermore, they do so in three languages: English, Spanish and French. A special CD is included in every box to help with the pronunciations in all three languages. "Can we leave our kids a better legacy than the gift of languages?" asks McDuff.

The first six games in the series are designed to teach kids about animals, food, shapes and colors, opposites, the alphabet, and math.

Six additional games for ages 6 and up are in the making. These will cover such subjects as geography, professions, sports, addition and subtraction, division, and multiplication. The collection will grow with your child. As the child masters the first steps of the learning process, he or she can then move on to more advanced games that become increasingly challenging.

combining the game's image cards. The more images they combine, the more points they win.

According to McDuff, creator of Junior Enigmages, visual, motor and language skills are called upon in this game. "The kids must see, identify and associate images; then they have to pick them up faster than the other players. Most of the answers make up compound words. Teachers really appreciate this," he laughs.

The Memo-Lingo collection, Junior Enigmages, as well as the original McWiz and McWiz Junior, are available in specialty toy stores, bookstores, and school-supply stores across North America.

Buying Family-Friendly Games

Video games and computers are a fact of life for kids today. As children begin interacting with electronic equipment at younger ages, parents are challenged to more closely monitor the games their children are playing.

As video games are sure to be at the top of this year's holiday wish lists, experts recommend the following guidelines for parents to keep in mind when selecting video games for their family:

- Check the game content and skill level requirements by carefully examining the packaging to see if the game is recommended for the child's age group.

- Read the content descriptor on the back of the product's packaging and examine the pictures and text to get an idea of what the title is about.

- Before making a purchase, be sure that the software is compatible with your gaming system.

One newly released title for the holiday season, Disney's Extreme Skate Adventure, represents a safe choice for parents. The game marks the first time Buzz Lightyear and Woody from Disney/Pixar's "Toy Story 2,"

Young Tarzan and Terk from "Disney's Tarzan®" and Simba and Rafiki from "Disney's The Lion King" have been showcased in the same video game. Players perform ollies, rail grinds, spins and other expert balance moves as their favorite characters, and skate through each of their worlds. For example: Simba and Rafiki go for a spin around Pride Rock, while Young Tarzan and Terk skate around Tarzan's Treehouse, and Buzz Lightyear and Woody have a ball at Pizza Planet as they interact with the other characters in those worlds.

The game also addresses the necessary fun factor by offering players skateboards that resemble bamboo rafts, frying pans and other non-traditional items. Beyond the skateboard challenge, there are puzzles to solve, secret areas to explore and collectibles to find on each level of the game.

The PlayStation®2 computer entertainment system, Xbox® video game system and Nintendo GameCube® platforms feature 12 playable movie characters to choose from and diverse gameplay modes, including Adventure Mode, which lets players complete goals as a favorite Disney character or real-world character from the Create-A-Skater feature and Multiplayer which allows for split-screen competition with friends.

The Nintendo Game Boy® Advance version features six playable Disney characters to choose from and three gameplay modes, including Story, which lets players unlock new levels by completing goals; Single Session, to achieve high scores; and Multiplayer.

The game is available at Toys 'R' Us, K-Mart, Best Buy, Electronics Boutiques and other stores where video games are sold.

Easy Ways to Cut Costs Around the Holidays

Everyone knows that budgets are stretched a bit around the holidays. It's one time of the year where you should definitely think about saving extra money in order to afford gifts for family and friends.

One easy way to save on home expenses is to cut down the amount of your grocery bill. Perhaps you've heard tips like avoiding the grocery store when you're hungry, using coupons and buying only the items on your list however, there are several other ways to save when you set out for the market. Here are some tips, courtesy of The Dollar Stretcher (www.stretcher.com).

The first thing you should do after making your grocery list is to try to figure out the total cost of your grocery bill. Make sure you've got everything on the list that you'll need because after you've made an educated guess you're going to take that amount of money from your wallet and leave the rest behind. Grab your keys and head to the store with just your list and cash. This will definitely cut back on the unnecessary extras you'd be tempted to purchase because you won't have the credit cards, debit cards, and check-book to fall back on.

Don't pass up the day-old-bread rack or the "about to expire" section of the meat department. You have to be careful, but you'll probably be able to tell whether the item is good. Just make sure to use the item right away; don't let it sit in your refrigerator for a week.

Another thing to consider is the time of day, time of week and even time of month that you are shopping. When the grocery store is less busy, like in the middle of the week or early morning you'll be able to shop more efficiently without having to dodge other shoppers in the aisles. Avoid shopping on the first day or two of the month. Some stores actually raise prices then because that is the time when social security and welfare checks go out.

Look high and low for savings, literally. Higher-priced name brand items usually pay to be positioned at eye-level on shelves so that they'll be spotted easily. The lower priced generic and store-brand items are usually higher or lower than the brand name items. Don't assume that generic will equal a lower price, however. Play it safe and review costs carefully. Lastly, try to set up a shopping pool in your neighborhood. Have another mom or dad watch the kids and then you can do the shopping for both of you, and vice versa. It's much easier to shop without children because you won't be tempted to buy things to keep them quiet and you'll have more time to comparison shop.

Progressive Dinner Parties Put a Retro Spin on Holiday Entertaining

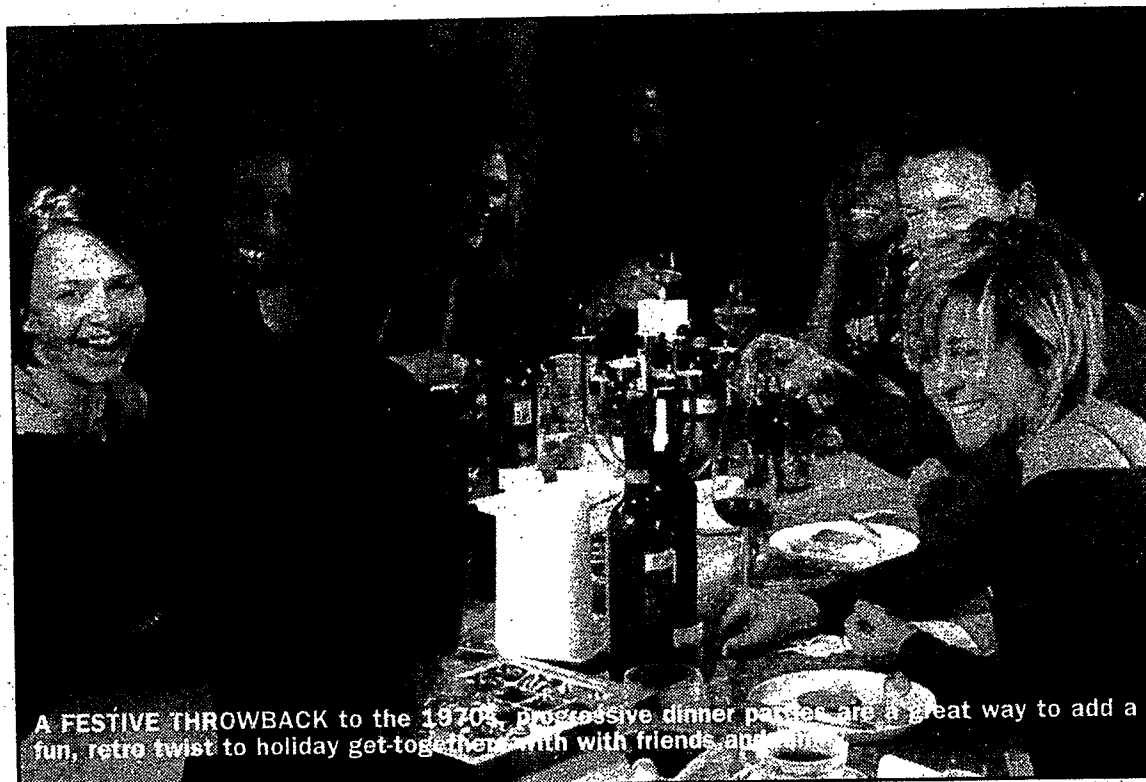

Want to put a new spin on your holiday party this year? Try a throwback from the 1970s: progressive dinner parties. Progressive dinner parties are a great way to get together with neighbors, friends and family, and the best part is, you're only responsible for one course.

To plan a progressive dinner party, talk to friends and neighbors to gauge their interest and willingness to participate. These parties work best in neighborhoods where people can walk from one house to the next.

Experts recommend scheduling no more than three or four courses, otherwise the evening becomes too complicated for all involved. Plan on at least a three-hour evening with 45 minutes at each home.

If you're part of the organizing team, you'll not only want to consider the menu, but the décor and arrangements as well. Jamie Hurd, academic department director of interior design for The Art Institute of Portland, recommends creating a design theme that can help tie the whole evening together.

A FESTIVE THROWBACK to the 1970s, progressive dinner parties are a great way to add a fun, retro twist to holiday get-togethers with friends and family.

For example:

Autumn Harvest — With this theme, you can use gourds, pumpkins and other foods of the harvest. Buy stalks of corn to tie to columns outside of each house, or stack them on the corner of each porch. For table arrangements, scatter brightly-colored leaves around the table (make sure they are fresh) as well as a few acorns or pine cones. Autumn harvest is about abundance, so anything you can do to make things look abundant will tie in well, such as covering a small plate entirely with food or slightly tilting the bread in a container so it looks like it's falling out.

Ice Cold — Pick up sparkly white netting or tulle from a floral or craft store, and place throughout each participating house.

Use cool blues, transparent glasses and candlesticks as décor in each home to emulate the chilly winter months.

Single Color — If you don't want to be season-specific, you could choose one color and repeat it in different tones from house to house. The same color could be replicated in items such as table linens, plate ware, drinks, glasses, candles and more. For something different, try replacing a few key light bulbs in each house to match the color theme of the party.

Color Block Party — Each house can take on a different color as its theme. This way, hosts will have freedom in choosing the décor, but there's still some continuity as guests go from house to house.

For progressive party food, there are plenty of options. According to Chef Joseph Zoellin, academic chairman of the culinary department, The Art Institute of California — Los Angeles, the key to a great progressive dinner party menu is "make ahead-ability" of the dishes. "Select appetizers, soups, salads, main courses or desserts that can be made ahead and still look fresh and wonderful when your guests arrive," he says.

As a chef instructor at a culinary school, Zoellin says many of his young students were not even born when progressive dinner parties first became popularized, "so this is a new concept to them." However, when he introduced the idea to his students, they were so eager that they almost immediately started planning parties amongst themselves.

Zoellin recommends the following recipe for "Carpaccio of Beef" because it can be prepared ahead of time and requires a minimum of preparation to serve. "To complement the 'wow' of a perfect Carpaccio, serve a fresh, fruity and lively Beaujolais," he recommends.

A simple Web search for "progressive dinner party" will yield even more information and recipes for an entertaining idea that's ready for a comeback.

Pots and Pans Make a Great Gift

Buying holiday gifts for the cooks on your list can be daunting. While there are numerous cookbooks covering virtually every cuisine and style, unless you know for sure what the recipient likes, it's always possible the book will gather dust on a shelf. Likewise, food products or unique ingredients, while creative and thoughtful, can pose problems if they don't match the person's taste, dietary or religious restrictions.

Yet cooking fans — from gourmands to casual home chefs — will always appreciate a gift of high-quality, distinctive cookware, from niche items to versatile, multi-functional pieces. And Americans say they are spending more time at home with their families and cooking in, rather than going out. Cookware gifts are a great way to encourage this trend while expanding your friends' and families' cooking creativity.

Here are some gift ideas that are sure to please every cook on your list:

- The Circulon Classic 8-quart Colander Pot, retailing for $70 to $140, is a great, all-around pot that features a locking colander lid for straining and draining, with different-sized holes on either side for accommodating small or large food. It accommodates large amounts of food including potatoes and pasta, eliminating the need for a colander. It's also ideal for straining stocks for soups, a popular cold-weather food. The lid locks securely in place, allowing hands to stay out of the way of hot water and steam. The durable nonstick interior makes cleanup easy, and the patented interior groove system increases the longevity of the nonstick coating, allowing food to release from the pan without sticking. Even better, handles stay cool to the touch during stove-top cooking.

The KitchenAid Steamer Insert is another unique cookware piece that's sure to please most every cook. The versatile insert fits all KitchenAid Cookware 12-inch sauté pans, 12-inch stir fry pans and 12-quart stockpots, as well as many other brands of pans. It retails from $50. Its width and depth make it ideal for steaming long vegetables, such as asparagus, or larger quantities in a single layer for even cooking. For a fun, culinary twist, try it for steaming fish or heating dumplings.

For a novel holiday gift idea, try the new Anolon Advanced Breakfast Griddle, retailing from $40. It brings the quality of restaurant-tested nonstick cookware to a versatile pan that allows users to make a complete breakfast in one pan. The square-shaped pan has two built-in rings that prevent pancakes or eggs from mixing with grease or flavors from bacon or sausage.

For convenience, the griddle has a pour spout to drain fats easily and high sides to minimize splatter. In addition, the griddle is made of hard-anodized aluminum which heats quickly and evenly, and the interior features a durable nonstick coating for long-lasting performance. To make gripping the pan easier, even when filled with breakfast foods, the handle incorporates silicone for a non-slip, secure grip.

These "Power Nachos" from "Fast Appetizers" (Ten Speed Press) by Hugh Carpenter and Teri Sandison are sure to please any group hungry for something different.

POWER NACHOS

Serves 4 to 8

Nachos are a powerful appetizer, rich in flavor, texture and of course, lots of cheese. They are perfect at a party where where little nibbles are the main food. Nachos can be cooked on a heat-proof dish that doubles as the serving plate.

1/2 cup taco sauce
2 teaspoons hot sauce or more to taste
1/4 cup pecans
4 cups lightly salted tortilla chips
1 1/2 cups grated Monterey jack or sharp Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup minced red onion
1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro

Preheat the oven to 325 F. In a small bowl, combine the taco sauce and hot sauce. Spread the pecans on a baking sheet, and toast until golden brown, about 15 minutes. Let cool, then chop coarsely. The recipe can be prepared to this point up to eight hours before it will be cooked.

Preheat the oven to 500 F. Place the chips in a shallow heat-proof serving dish. Sprinkle them with half the cheese, drizzle on the taco sauce and top with the onion and the rest of the cheese. Place in the oven, and cook until the cheese melts, about five minutes. Sprinkle on the pecans and cilantro. Serve immediately.

Keeping in Touch in the Electronic Age

Lisa Rogers denies the label "techie." The 25-year-old New York City resident has a brand new desktop at home with a CD burner, flat screen, and more.

Her cell phone features text messaging and a Web browser. Ask her e-mail address and you'll get one of 10. "Ironically I don't feel that hooked up," she says. On her gadget wish list this season: a fancy new cell phone and high-speed Internet access.

Compared to others, Rogers isn't all that connected. With personal digital assistants, notebooks, desktops and more, people can stock up their technology "stash" this holiday season to stay in touch and on top of the technological curve.

Tech gadgets make great gifts for people of all ages. Give a friend or loved one the gift of accessibility and connectivity this season. Here are some ideas to get you started.

Personal digital assistants (PDAs): Pen and paper are so two years ago. And calendars are part of the Dark Ages. Today's ultra organized use their PDAs to keep track of contacts, appointments, e-mail and more. Try using the Toshiba Pocket PC e750 with Windows® Mobile 2003 or Handspring's Treo™ 300.

Notebooks: Laptops have come a long way. No longer are they clunky, overweight and basic black. Today's laptops are easy to handle, lightweight, and come in funky colors like metallic blue or slate gray. Burn CDs or watch a DVD. Techies will enjoy the Dell Inspiron™ 8500 or Gateway® 600S.

Cell phones: Mobile phones are for more than just dialing digits. You can connect to the Web. You can instant message with friends on an array of servers. You can even take snapshots. For the ultimate techie phone, try the Panasonic GU87, AT&T's first model with an integrated camera, or the LG 6000 by Verizon that also features a built-in camera.

Wireless e-mail: Even on September 11, 2001, when telephone and cellular lines were jammed in New York City, some wireless e-mail systems were still working. Unlike PDAs, they feature mini keyboards that make it easy to shoot out an e-mail wirelessly. For a phone, e-mail access and an organizer all in one, purchase the BlackBerry 7230™ or the Palm Tungsten™ W handheld.

There are tech gadgets on the market this season that can be used by even the least techie of people. But just prepare yourself for the deluge of phone calls and e-mails from your newly connected gift recipient.

Simple Tips to Keep Your New Year's Resolutions After the Holidays are Over

With the onset of every New Year, you likely resolve to make some changes in your life in the spirit of the season. Maybe you say you'll exercise more, eat less or reduce the stress in your life. Whatever you resolve to do, very often you have the same New Year's resolutions year in and year out because it's just too hard to fulfill them.

Imagine how your life would change if you could put it on "autopilot" and reach all of your goals automatically. Here's the good news, you can by utilizing a powerful self improvement tool that you already possess... your habits. Think about the habits you have now and how they affect virtually every aspect of your life. Your weight and health are determined by your eating habits. Your relationships with people are determined by your social habits. Your success at work is determined by your work habits. Your character, health and virtually every aspect of your life is determined by your habits.

If you ask 10 people on the street what the word habit means, nine of them will tell you that a habit is a negative action that people do over and over again, like smoking, procrastinating or eating too much. People seldom think about the power that exists in good habits.

Look a little closer at the meaning of the word habit. Random House dictionary defines habit in this way:

POSITIVE HABITS can be powerful tools for personal growth and success all year long.

Habit: An acquired behavior pattern regularly followed until it has become almost involuntary.

Think about the words "almost involuntary." This means the habit is so powerful in your mind that it is almost unstoppable. With respect to bad habits like smoking, procrastination and overeating, this is very bad. But with positive habits, this is very good.

When is the last time you sat down and said to yourself, "Today I am going to add a new habit to my life?" You have probably never said those words but you can start saying them today.

What is a positive habit? A positive habit is a habit that produces positive benefits.

Why is there such great power in positive habits to affect change? Because habits, by their nature, are automatic. Over time, they can become permanent. You can put your life on autopilot to reach your goals automatically by acquiring new positive habits that provide the benefits you want. How do you go about adding new positive habits to your life? You begin repeating an action, attitude or thought process every day for at least 21 days. Research has shown that an action that is repeated for a minimum of 21 days is likely to become a permanent habit.

Here are a few habits that can positively affect your life and that are easy to acquire.

- Make it a habit to set goals. Define your goals, write them down on paper, set a deadline for reaching them and track your progress.

- Make it a habit to walk everyday. A recent study published by the New England Journal of Medicine showed that women who walked regularly lowered their risk for heart disease as much as women who did more vigorous exercise such as running.

- Make it a habit to always order your salads with dressing on the side, potatoes with toppings on the side and order fried foods baked. According to the Encyclopedia of Foods, you can save 10 to 30 grams of fat every time you eat out by controlling the amount of fat that you add to your foods.

There are more than 80 life-changing positive habits in the new bestselling book "The Power of Positive Habits" (Abritt Publishing) by Dan Robey. Discover how to lose weight automatically, be more successful automatically, have better relationships automatically and more. You can purchase the book at major bookstores or by calling toll free 1-866-MYHABITS.

Adam Rodriguez

Checking in with Adam Rodriguez

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Adam Rodriguez, who plays Eric Delko in CBS' Monday-night "C.S.I. Miami," planned to become a pro baseball player.

But when he broke a bone in his back and then tore his rotator cuff, the grassy diamond was out. So he became a stockbroker trainee.

"My thing was to be a stockbroker and build a nest egg so I would be able to sustain myself as a struggling actor," Rodriguez says. "I did the trainee thing for four or five months, and just as I was getting ready to get the license, I realized this isn't what I wanted, and I said, 'The hell with it.' I didn't have any family to support. I might as well go after it full force."

For two years, he was an extra in New York. He worked a lot as a photo double for Michael DeLorenzo ("New York Undercover"), with whom he later worked in "Resurrection Blvd."

Shortly after moving to Los Angeles, Rodriguez landed the role as Hector Villanueva in "Brooklyn South." The excellent drama only lasted one season, which continues to pain him.

"To this day, I still don't know the real reason why that show wasn't picked up for a second season," he says. "It wasn't a flop, not by any means. Those were the days when cable and the Internet were starting to take away from the numbers and ratings in television. And at the time, if you weren't doing 'ER' numbers ... you were considered a failure."

From his perspective, however, there is no failure if you are doing what you love - no matter what that is. "Even if that is just a hobby," he says, "it makes all the difference and it makes for more happy people."

Hometown: New York.
Birthdate: April 2, 1975.

Resides in: Venice Beach, Calif.

Significant other: "Not right now," he says. "I am always hoping to meet her, but I am enjoying being single right now."

Best dish he cooks: "I make a mean breakfast - banana pancakes, omelets, whatever."

Exercise regimen: "I am super, super lazy," he says.

Guilty Pleasure on TV: "Road Rules."

Favorite movies: "Dog Day Afternoon," "Stand by Me," "The Deer Hunter."

Favorite actor: Meryl Streep.

Currently reading: "The Invisible Man."

One player quit and ousted players returned, but the biggest surprise of "Survivor: Pearl Islands" may be yet to come.

The latest season of executive producer Mark Burnett's unscripted CBS series ends in a two-hour finale Sunday, Dec. 14. The show's most crucial Tribal Council is followed by an hourlong reunion of all who competed off the coast of Panama for the $1 million grand prize. Series host Jeff Probst will preside over the reunion, now to be televised (live in the Eastern half of the country) from Los Angeles, since El Arco Chato - the Panama City landmark originally earmarked for the special - partially collapsed last month.

The buccaneer theme of "Pearl Islands" was clear from the start, when the participants were thrown off a boat with only the clothes they had on, then were split into tribes Drake and Morgan (named for the English pirates Sir Francis Drake and Captain Henry Morgan). The first six people voted out of the game reappeared as a third tribe, the Outcasts. Along the way, Boston equity trade manager Osten Taylor made no secret of his wanting out. He got his wish when Probst dismissed him without the usual Tribal Council sanction.

Probst reasons, "On a show like this, where you can't control the outcome with a script, you have to have some impact with twists that you know will ensure the game will change every few weeks or so. The worst-case scenario is, 'Boring, boring, boring ... twist!' so you hope for a little luck in-between."

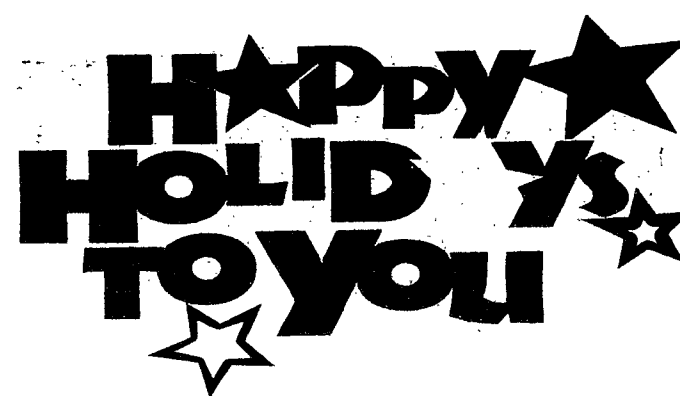

Probst must be an actor to a certain degree, wearing a poker face to keep "Survivor" players from knowing in advance when the surprises will come. "It's a weird role," he allows. "My job sometimes is to sucker somebody into moving left when I know we're heading right. The producers tell me the stuff I absolutely need to know, but not too many details. That lets them keep their confidence with the players, who truly can believe the stuff they say is private. It also gives me the freedom to react honestly, which has made me better at my job."

Discovery goes back in time to 'Dinosaur Planet'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Just imagine if aliens landed on Planet Earth during the Cretaceous Period, 65-85 million years ago. They might have been attacked by voracious packs of feathered velociraptors. They might have been squashed by a massive, long-necked saltasaur in search of tasty treetops. Or they could have run afoul of a 25-foot-long, carnivorous T. rex cousin called the daspletosaurus.

If so, it's no wonder they haven't been back.

On Sunday and Tuesday, Dec. 14 and 16, Discovery Channel shows how alien Earth would have looked even to us way back then, in the four-episode miniseries "Dinosaur Planet." It's produced by Evergreen Films, which previously explored prehistory for Discovery in "When Dinosaurs Roamed America."

"That show was released around the world," Evergreen executive producer Pierre de Lespinois says, "and got a pretty good response. A lot of people called and said, 'Why only focus on North America?'"

"So Discovery came back to us and said, 'Let's do one for each continent.' We pitched that we should do stories following a specific animal, make it a character, so you could follow the whole life cycle. We follow individuals. Some of them make it; some of them don't."

Two episodes air each night, all narrated by actor Christian Slater.

On Sunday, "White Tip's Journey" tracks the travails of a female velociraptor trying to survive on her own after her hunting pack is killed in the Mongolian deserts of Asia; and "Little Das' Hunt" profiles a young male daspletosaurus whose hunting mishaps wind up being the least of his problems when a volcano erupts.

After a Monday-night break for dinosaur-themed episodes of "Monster House" and "Monster Garage," "Dinosaur Planet" returns with two more tales on Tuesday.

"Alpha's Egg" shows that a herbivore's life is hardly a tiptoe through the tulips, as a female saltasaur struggles to survive long enough to reproduce; and "Pod's Travels" tells the lonely tale of a pack-hunting pyroraptor washed up on an island where prey is plentiful but company is scarce.

As with "When Dinosaurs Roamed America" and its predecessor, the BBC's groundbreaking "Walking With Dinosaurs," "Dinosaur Planet" blends CGI creatures into real-world settings.

For Evergreen Films, home is a cozy set of offices and post-production facilities tucked in an out-of-the-way part of the green hills of Pacific Palisades, near Malibu, Calif. But both the films' creatures and settings originate much farther afield.

Evergreen's animation studio is in Montreal, where sophisticated software creates dinosaurs detailed enough to look at home in locations shot in high-definition video. From individually waving feathers to shadows, footprints and puffs of dust, it's a painstaking job.

A continent away, de Lespinois and his team search the world for locations that double for the Cretaceous Period in Mongolia, Montana, Patagonia and Europe.

"You try to find the good equivalent to what it was at that time," de Lespinois says, "and it's never where it is today. Patagonia was actually filmed in King's Canyon, Calif."

"The other thing that's really neat about these films," producer John Copeland adds, "is that all the background sounds, all the birds, has to be created. The sounds of the environments are not what we go out there and get with our microphones."

A predatory pyroraptor finds himself with plenty of food but little company in "Pod's Travels," one of the stories in "Dinosaur Planet," premiering Sunday and Tuesday on Discovery Channel.

If you think hauling actors to remote locations is difficult, imagine having to film in the great outdoors when your stars are nothing but pixels on a computer screen.

"You get out in the field," de Lespinois says, "and it's like three-dimensional chess. It's hard to shoot scale and size. The way you design these things, you storyboard it out, and you don't deviate from the storyboard, because you get really confused when you do."

"I remember taking the camera, and the dinosaur that I'm trying to fit in the shot is 90 feet long, and there's this vista of an entire valley in front of me. I pick up the camera and say, 'It's too close. I have to walk back.'"

'Cold Case' star played Cruise's movie wife

Q Please tell us about the blond actress who plays Lilly on CBS' cool new "Cold Case" series. I don't think I have seen her in anything before.

A Many readers are buzzing over Kathryn Morris as an important new face, although the Dallas-born actress, who declines to reveal her age, has been working for several years now.

Morris' more high-profile roles include Lara Anderson, Tom Cruise's wife in the film "Minority Report," and the ill-fated Anne Marie Fahey opposite Mark Harmon's Thomas Capano in the CBS thriller "And Never Let Her Go."

She also has appeared in the films "A.I.: Artificial Intelligence," "The Last Castle," "The Contender" and "As Good As It Gets." Before "Cold Case," she was a featured cast member of "Pensacola: Wings of Gold" and "Sweet Justice."

Other TV movie and series guest appearances include "Oldest Living Confederate Widow Tells All," "Xena: Warrior Princess," "Providence" and "The Mind of the Married Man." The actress, who makes her home in Los Angeles, also has a lengthy list of stage credits.

Q Does Catherine Bell of "JAG" have a scar on her neck? In some scenes it appears that she does.

A Yes, Bell had surgery more than a decade ago to remove her thyroid gland. She says she doesn't bother concealing the scar because she thinks it looks "kind of cool."

Q Has "Karen Sisco" been canceled? -Kris via e-mail.

A The ABC drama starring Carla Gugino is on indefinite hiatus due to very weak ratings, but the network says it may return later this season.

'Secret Santa' gives a little holiday cheer to NBC

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

If you stand on the steps of the white gazebo and focus on the wet, mud-splattered car parked in front of the corner restaurant, maybe squint to avoid seeing the fully leafed maple tree just to the left of the spindly fake street lamp wrapped in twinkling lights, crouch a bit so the loose script pages can fly by over your head in the strong summer winds - and definitely don't look down at the green grass - then it's just about starting to look a little bit like Christmas ... more or less.

After days of overcast skies, the June sun is blazing down on the set of "Secret Santa" on the fabled Warner Bros. lot in Burbank, Calif. On the Midwest Street outdoor set - whose town square was built for the 1945 movie "Saratoga Trunk" - the holiday season is in full swing. While wind wreaks havoc with the Christmas banner and decorations near the gazebo, crew members hose down the dusty sidewalk to simulate December damp.

Extras layered with sweaters and coats for filming shed as much as they can while lounging in whatever shade they can find near the gazebo. Decked out in flannel, actor Steven Eckholdt dodges the sun to keep his makeup intact for the next scene in this year's Christmas movie from writer-producer Beth Polson ("The Christmas Box," "The Christmas Wish"), airing Sunday, Dec. 14, on NBC. Polson also co-wrote, with Robert Tate Miller, the movie's companion novel of the same name, published by Atria Books.

From the vantage point of the gazebo, the holiday trimmings seem a bit out of place amid the lawns and leaves, but the 360-degree view is pure Americana. There are Victorian houses, a courthouse, a white church (used in "The Waltons"), a redbrick business district and tree-lined streets.

The setting is Hamden, Ind., a hamlet of 5,000 souls. According to mayor and innkeeper Winifred (played by former "West Wing" star Kathryn Joosten, aka Mrs. Landingham), "We carry Christmas in our hearts all year round."

Darting across the square is Jennie Garth, star of The WB Network's "What I Like About You." She cradles her baby daughter, born last December to Garth and husband Peter Facinelli.

"I really didn't want to work on my hiatus," she says. "I wanted to stay home with my new baby. It was a huge sacrifice of my personal time to do this movie, but if I had to give it up, I'm glad I chose this place and these people to do it. I love the character ... and it's a Christmas story. I love Christmas movies."

Garth plays Rebecca Chandler, a cynical journalist assigned to write yet another puff piece about Hamden's mysterious holiday benefactor, who, each year, anonymously helps a local resident. Dumped by her boyfriend and yelled at by her boss, Rebecca decides to play sleuth and uncover the true identity of Secret Santa.

"People come to this little town every year, trying to figure out who the Secret Santa is," says Eckholdt, who plays local millionaire (and prime Secret Santa candidate) John Martin Carter.

"Unlike some of the other characters," Eckholdt continues, "he actually knows who it is. He's more of a Cheshire cat. I could tell you, but then I'd have to kill you. You just have to watch. It's not important who it is, that's the point. Secret Santa ceases to be once you know who he or she is."

But Rebecca is determined - and trapped, since one mishap after another befalls her Volkswagen Beetle, starting with a cow in the middle of the road.

"She was beautiful," Garth says. "Her name was Megan. I loved her."

When there is no room at Winifred's inn, Rebecca accepts lodging in a local rest home (shot in a convent for retired nuns), where she meets a kindly caretaker Russell (Charlie Robinson) and charming resident Miss Ruthie, played by "Leave It to Beaver" star Barbara Billingsley.

"You should have seen the day she was on set," Polson recalls. "Everybody went up to her. These are people who are used to dealing with actors all the time, and everybody was awestruck."

Rebecca then proceeds to charge around Hamden, aggressively trying to ferret out the truth. She winds up meeting kindness and patience - if not a whole lot of answers - at every turn.

"She's just so busy and clouded by what she thinks is important in life," Garth says, "her relationship that's not working, her career. She's so driven. She doesn't have a family to speak of, or one she would admit to having. This is all completely foreign territory to her, these people and their ability to care for each other, their emotions, just their love of life. It's all new to her."

Jennie Garth plays a reporter trying to unmask an anonymous benefactor, and Steven Eckholdt plays her prime suspect, in the holiday movie "Secret Santa," premiering Sunday on NBC.

"She comes here, isn't looking for anything, and doesn't know she's finding anything until she's found it, then she's thinking, 'Wow, what's happened to me? Why am I feeling these things?'"

"Winifred takes this girl under her wing," Joosten says, "and lets her know that there are other things in life than chasing after the story. We all let her know that we think highly of her, and she's welcome in our community and our lives."

"It's a story about giving," Polson says, "and the definition of giving, whether that's giving of yourself or giving that's wrapped up. What does giving mean?"

For the city of Monrovia, Calif., just east of Pasadena at the foot of the San Gabriel Mountains (which are snowcapped in winter), Polson's gift was a little bit of summertime movie magic.

"They did some fake snow over a location there," Eckholdt recalls, "and it was amazing. The part on the ground not only looks good on camera, but the part that was actually floating through the sky, looked exactly like snow."

'Cousin Eddie' lampoons Christmas again on NBC

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

If Cousin Eddie is the person taking it, it has to be another National Lampoon "Vacation."

Randy Quaid reprises his role from three previous Lampoon movies in the new NBC comedy "National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation 2: Cousin Eddie's Island Adventure," airing Saturday, Dec. 20.

The film sends uncouth Eddie and his relatives - including his wife and cousin, played by fellow returnees Miriam Flynn and Dana Barron - on a South Pacific holiday trek, arranged by Eddie's boss (Fred Willard) to ward off a possible lawsuit over the monkey bite Eddie suffered in a lab accident.

With a newly separated uncle (Ed Asner) also in tow, Eddie and his clan get shipwrecked on an island, forcing them into "Cast Away" mode. Julian Stone ("General Hospital") appears as an Australian tycoon and potential rescuer; "Monty Python" veteran Eric Idle and Beverly Garland ("My Three Sons") co-star in the film written and executive-produced by Lampoon staple Matty Simmons, also the producer of the 1978 classic "National Lampoon's Animal House."

Though he missed Chevy Chase's presence as patriarchal Clark Griswold of the earlier "National Lampoon's Vacation" movies, Quaid says, "I had always felt strongly about doing more with Eddie. I wasn't sure that Eddie without Clark was something I wanted to do; I'm still not sure. I'd like John Hughes (who wrote the original 'Vacation,' 'Christmas Vacation' and 'European Vacation') and Chevy to do another one. They are the creators of these characters, and they really know the voices."

Those voices were written for theatrical movies, and Quaid (recently of the short-lived CBS series "The Brotherhood of Poland, New Hampshire") ran into more constraints in making a Lampoon project for the home screen. "Yeah, that was irritating, but it worked out in the end. We may have some racier footage making it in. The director was very conservative on many levels and didn't know the character. Eddie needs to be offensive. It's in his blood, so I was constantly reminding (the film's staff) who Eddie was. You can't clean Eddie up."

Writer-producer Simmons always intended to stay true to Eddie, even within broadcast-television boundaries. "We had done four movies with Chevy," he explains, "and he loved the idea of this one, but it never got off the ground with him. We then decided to do a spinoff built around Eddie because everyone loves that character. Whenever we surveyed audiences on what they liked in the previous films, he just burst out."

"Remember that 'National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation' was rated PG-13," Simmons adds, "so you can do this without being too over-the-top with obscenities and such."

Released in 1989, the original "Christmas Vacation" has become a holiday perennial, to the degree that NBC is airing it twice this season (with the second showing scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 14). "You really can't compare them," Quaid says of that movie and his new entry. "This one is all Eddie, so it's like having the frosting without the cake - or maybe the sprinkles without the frosting and the cake."

That said, Quaid doesn't embrace Christmas in quite the same way Cousin Eddie might. "I try to just forget the whole thing," the actor claims. "I try to be out of town."

ESPN's Theismann uses fear of dead air

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

As an analyst on ESPN's "Sunday Night Football," Joe Theismann is known for his meticulous pregame preparation.

In a typical week during the football season, the former Washington Redskins signal caller will spend 40 hours studying the teams he'll be covering the following Sunday, as well as digesting material for the game two-weeks hence. He'll pore over volumes of statistics, look for tendencies that could determine a game's outcome, and try to find obscure stories that no one else has discovered.

But all this prep work is not a function of being an ex-NFL quarterback. "I think it's a function of being scared," says Theismann, who will be in the booth with Mike Patrick and Paul Maguire on Saturday, Dec. 20, when ESPN presents its 200th telecast of "Sunday Night Football," a contest between the New York Jets and the New England Patriots from Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. "I think fear probably is the greatest motivator. I don't ever want to be caught in a situation during a game where I'm not prepared for whatever might come up.

"It's not only the red light," he continues. "We're on for three hours, and I really settled into this. When it was just Mike and I, it's just Michael's voice and my voice for three hours. If it was a good football game, it was easy to do because you could do nuts and bolts of football - talk about what's going on on the field. If the game got away from you midway through the second quarter, what are you going to do for two-and-a-half quarters? ... And so, my greatest fear is that I don't have something available to me that I think would be interesting to the fan to talk about."

Talk has never been a problem in this booth. The loquacious Theismann's rapport with Patrick stems from a relationship that dates back to 1976, when both called Maryland college basketball games on local television in Washington, D.C. They went their separate ways after that, eventually reuniting in 1988 after Theismann had left CBS to join ESPN, where Patrick had been doing Sunday night games from the beginning in 1987.

In 1998, they were joined by Maguire, who quickly became Theismann's frequent on-air sparring partner. "We have a lot of fun," chuckles Theismann, who will be doing his 192nd ESPN telecast on Saturday. "What you basically see on camera is just an extension of what Michael, Paul and I talk about starting on Fridays. We have dinner on Fridays. We play cards together. We meet, we talk, we drive - we spend a lot of time together, just really kicking around the game, our opinions: 'What do you think?' 'I don't think so.'"

"Paulie and I will get into a discussion. I'll say, 'This is great. Let's save it. This is what we want, but let's save it and see what comes out during the ballgame.' And then a lot of the times, you just react to what happens."

Theismann also finds it helpful listening to announcers on other networks. "Actually for me, listening to games becomes great research," he says. "For example, I think (Fox analyst) Troy Aikman does a wonderful job of articulating and presenting an interesting perspective of the game. And I like listening to Troy because I (find myself saying), 'You know what? That makes sense.' It's like ('Monday Night Football' analyst) John Madden. I was listening to John talk about (Green Bay Packers running back) Ahman Green the other day, and Ahman had some rubber sleeves on and he fumbled a couple of times. And he changed them and he didn't fumble. That's a great observation. Now to me, that's fascinating. And those are the kinds of gems that just come up in a game sometimes and you identify them."

Theismann's ultimate goal is to keep things interesting for the viewer, no matter the quality of the game. "I always try and stay a little bit ahead," he says. "I think that's probably the quarterback in me - the preparation that went into when I played and the preparation that I try and apply to the work I do now. Like I said, part of it is fear. I don't want to get trapped. The other thing is I have an obligation to the fans that watch this game, I have an obligation to the coaches, I have an obligation to the players, to do the best job that I can to present football."

"Target World Challenge" Sunday, Dec. 14 (ABC, 3 p.m. ET): Defending champion Padraig Harrington leads an illustrious field into the final round of the Target World Challenge, from Sherwood Country Club in Thousand Oaks, Calif. Joining Harrington are the top 11 golfers according to the Oct. 6 Official World Ranking, including tournament host Woods, Vijay Singh, Davis Love III and Kenny Perry. Jay Haas, Fred Couples, Ben Curtis and Shaun Micheel received special exemptions to round out the 16-player field.

"Philadelphia Eagles at Miami Dolphins" Monday, Dec. 15 (ABC, 9 p.m. ET): The Philadelphia Eagles, in a playoff positioning fight in the NFC, begin a tough season-ending three-game stretch in Miami. The 49ers and Redskins follow, but first Donovan McNabb and the Eagles face the Dolphins, who are thinking playoffs themselves. McNabb was the league's worst-rated quarterback after six games, but his gutsy play since then - he's overcome a nagging thumb injury - has propelled the Eagles back into the NFL elite.

"Detroit Pistons at Indiana Pacers" Friday, Dec. 19 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): A doubleheader begins with two of the top teams in the Eastern Conference meeting in Indianapolis. Complaints from All-Star Jermaine O'Neal about new coach Rick Carlisle's slow-paced offense hasn't affected the Pacers thus far. They're winning mostly because of tough defense, something leading scorer Chauncey Billups and the Pistons will see tonight. The second game hails from the Western Conference when the Spurs visit the SuperSonics.

7 p.m. and DSC
Dinosaur Planet

Everyone has a story, even a prehistoric dinosaur — and this new special, done in the style of "Walking With Dinosaurs," tells individual sagas of several prehistoric creatures. The stories are based on recent paleontological findings. In the first, "White Tip's Journey," a female velociraptor fends for herself after becoming separated from her pack. Another hourlong episode follows; Part 2 of the miniseries airs Tuesday.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Angels in America

Director Mike Nichols' version of the Tony- and Pulitzer Prize-winning Tony Kushner play concludes with the three-hour presentation "Perestroika." Al Pacino, Meryl Streep and Emma Thompson star in the drama about the impact of AIDS on various people. Mary-Louise Parker, Justin Kirk, Ben Shenkman, Patrick Wilson and James Cromwell also have featured roles.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX
Malcolm in the Middle

Hal (Bryan Cranston) tries to make up for his reduced pay at work by selling holiday trees in the new episode "Christmas Trees." His sons help him out, and they get into a price war with a nearby church whose members are selling trees for less. Priests (Casey Sander, Vic Polizos) then scheme to drive Hal out of business, but he takes a new approach to sales that irritates Lois (Jane Kaczmarek).

8:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Arrested Development

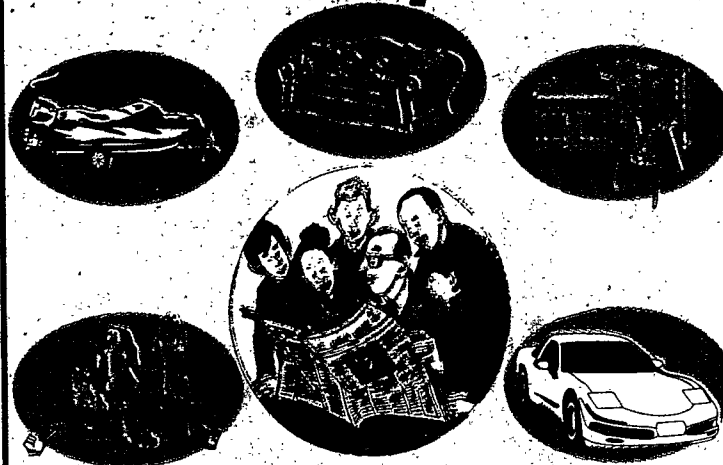

Once Michael and Lindsay (Jason Bateman, Portia de Rossi) realize that Lucille 2 (guest star Liza Minnelli) is pitting them against each other, they vow revenge in the new episode "In God We Trust."

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
The Practice

In "We the People," Ellenor (Camryn Manheim) hires Alan Shore (James Spader), fired by another firm for embezzling, as she and Jamie (Jessica Capshaw) defend a man (guest star Chris O'Donnell) accused of killing his pregnant wife. Rhona Mitra ("The Life of David Gale") also becomes a series regular here.

7 p.m. and BRAV

Movie: Life Is Beautiful

Roberto Benigni wrote, directed and stars in this Oscar-winning 1997 film set in 1930s Italy. High-spirited Guido Orefice (Benigni) relocates to a large Tuscan town, then meets and weds a local schoolteacher (Nicoletta Braschi). After Germany invades Italy, the family is torn apart and sent to concentration camps. But Guido refuses to lose his spirit and protects his son (Giorgio Cantarini) from the horrors surrounding them.

7 p.m. on HALL

Movie: The Christmas Box

Of the many holiday stories about looking for and finding the true meaning of Christmas, this 1995 TV movie is one of the best. Maureen O'Hara stars as a widow who discovers the miracles of everyday life when a young family moves into her home to care for her.

7:30 p.m. on 54-UPN

Eve

Happy that J.T. (Jason George) feels ignored by hard-working Shelly (Eve), his mother (guest star Daphne Maxwell Reid) tries to fix him up with another woman (guest star Kelly Rowland) in the new episode "Twas the Fight Before Christmas." Donovan's (Sean Maguire) ex-girlfriend (guest star Erinn Carter) wants to lure him back to England.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

NFL Football

The Philadelphia Eagles, in a playoff positioning fight in the NFC, begin a tough season-ending three-game stretch in Miami. The 49ers and Redskins follow, but first Donovan McNabb and the Eagles face the Dolphins, who are thinking playoffs themselves. McNabb was the league's worst-rated quarterback after six games, but his gutsy play since then — he's overcome a nagging thumb injury — has propelled the Eagles back into the NFL elite.

Monday Best Bets

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Everybody Loves Raymond

Ray (Ray Romano) is furious when his children ruin his dictionary, only to be reminded that he once ruined Frank's (Peter Boyle) music collection — supposedly — in the new episode "Jazz Records." Ray tries to make up for his apparent error by buying Frank compact disc versions of the lost albums, then becomes suspicious when Robert (Brad Garrett) gives him dad records just like the originals.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Las Vegas

The female half of a husband-and-wife magic team disappears during their show in the new episode "Decks and Violence." As Ed and Danny (James Caan, Josh Duhamel) conduct a search, the remaining spouse tries to continue the act solo, but audiences won't accept it. Mike (James Lesure) discovers that a college friend entered in the World Poker Championship is being bankrolled by a vicious loan shark.

The Christmas Orange

An ancient Christmas tradition gets an animated explanation in this special. A youngster (voice of Danny McKinnon) learns the true meaning of the holiday when he sues Santa Claus (voice of French Tickner) over his disappointment in getting an orange as a present, instead of the many toys he wanted. The Nuttiest Nutcracker

The classic Tchaikovsky ballet gets an unusual update in this animated version. The voices of Jim Belushi, Cheech Marin and Phyllis Diller are heard in the tale, in which two youngsters wait for their snowbound parents to return home. They get to open one Christmas present each, and one of the gifts turns out to be a nutcracker designed to look like a prince.

Movie: Goldfinger

The third James Bond film introduces Harold Sakata as Oddjob, who enforces his boss's orders with a razor-edged bowler hat. Goldfinger (Gert Frobe) is the rich villain who, after buying up all the world's private gold, plans to bomb Fort Knox. Agent 007 (Sean Connery) intends to derail that plan. Honor Blackman plays Goldfinger ally Pussy Galore; Shirley Eaton also stars, and Shirley Bassey belts out the title song.

Boston Public

Marla (Loretta Devine) is stunned to discover she has booked a concert by R.E.M., the music group that appears and performs the hit "Losing My Religion," in the new, holiday-themed episode "Chapter Seventy-Six." Guber (Anthony Heald) isn't sure what to do about a student believing himself to be Jesus. Hanson's (Michael Rapaport) efforts to provide a perfect Christmas for his new family are thwarted by his sister.

8 p.m. and BRAV

Entertainers of the Year

As the title indicates, this new special has a lot of material to cover in a relatively short time. The individuals who are named made their marks in television, movies, music or stage during the past year. Some were notable strictly for their professional accomplishments, while others made waves for their personal lives — often in ways they'd probably prefer not to be recounted.

8 p.m. on TNT

Movie: A Perfect Murder

A wheeler-dealer who is up the proverbial creek when some deals go bad knows a way to make money fast: by bumping off his wealthy wife for the insurance payout. To do the deed, he enlists the one man who can't say no: his wife's lover, who's wanted by the law for scamming other rich women. Michael Douglas, Gwyneth Paltrow and Viggo Mortensen star in this 1998 remake of the classic "Dial M for Murder."

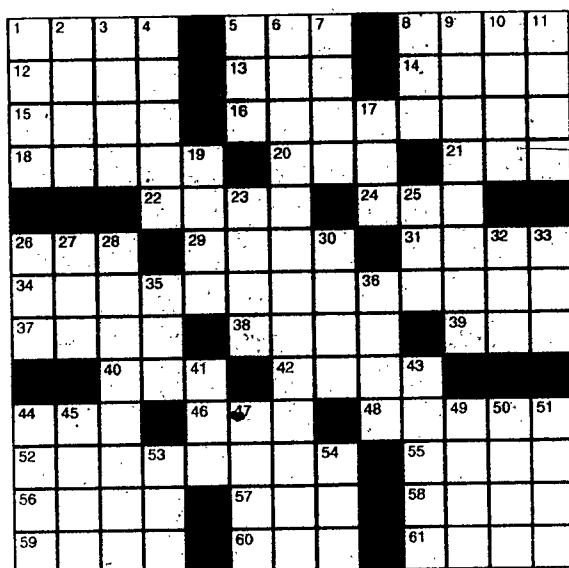

8 p.m. on USA

Movie: Happy Gilmore

The pro golf circuit will never be the same when a failed hockey player with a long drive and a short fuse moves from the rinks to the links. Adam Sandler has the title role in this 1996 comedy, with Julie Bowen ("Ed") as a pretty public relations executive whose heart the abrasive Happy somehow manages to win. Carl Weathers ("Rocky") co-stars and Bob Barker ("The Price Is Right") has a cameo.

Figure Skating

Proving he knows the way to San Jose, Burt Bacharach is joined by world-class figure skaters at the HP Pavilion in San Jose, Calif., in the new special "Burt Bacharach Tribute on Ice." The songwriter performs many of his classic tunes, accompanied by the artistry of skaters such as Brian Boitano, Nicole Bobek and Brian Orser. Also present to pay tribute to Bacharach are Grammy winners Michael McDonald and James Ingram.

6 p.m. on DSC

Unsolved History

This year's biggest concentration of programming about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy aired last month — to mark the tragedy's 40th anniversary — but "JFK Conspiracy" investigates long-maintained theories that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone in staging the murder. First-hand accounts of the shooting and testimony by conspiracy believers detail what may, or may not, have occurred that day in Dallas.

7 p.m. on 4-CBS

Robbie the Reindeer in Hooves of Fire

This British-produced special has been revoiced for U.S. network television. Ben Stiller, Hugh Grant, Britney Spears, James Belushi, Brad Garrett, Leah Remini, Jerry Stiller, James Woods, Dan Dierdorf and Dick Enberg star in the off-kilter animated story of the quest of Rudolph's son to take his father's place on Santa's sleigh team. "Robbie the Reindeer in Legend of the Lost Tribe" follows.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Adaptation

Co-star Chris Cooper earned an Oscar for his work in director Spike Jonze's way-offbeat 2002 comedy. Nicolas Cage has dual roles as Charlie Kaufman — who actually wrote the film's script — and Charlie's twin, fellow-writer Donald, who doesn't really exist. Creatively blocked Charlie reluctantly asks for successful Donald's help in adapting author Susan Orlean's (Meryl Streep) book about a plant dealer (Cooper).

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: The Santa Clause

This delightful Disney fantasy was one of the biggest box-office hits of 1994. A cynical divorced father, played by Tim Allen, dons the Santa Claus outfit worn by a man he frightened into falling off his roof — then finds himself the reluctant successor to the job of St. Nick. Judge Reinhold, Wendy Crewson ("24") and Eric Lloyd co-star.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

Stunned into silence by witnessing the murders of her parents, an autistic youngster (guest star Stephanie Patton) is the key to solving the killings in the new episode "The Voice Inside." Mannion (Craig T. Nelson) seeks help from a former hostage negotiator (guest star Rodney A. Grant, "Dances With Wolves"). Nancy (Elizabeth Marvel) is worried when she gets the wrong dress — stained with blood — from a dry cleaner.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"SEABISCUIT": The true legend of a Depression-era race horse that defied all odds is lovingly retold in this stirring drama, adapted from Laura Hillenbrand's best seller. Tobey Maguire plays Red Pollard, a former prizefighter who becomes an unlikely jockey, just as the undersized Seabiscuit is a long shot to become a champion. Jeff Bridges and Chris Cooper are excellent in their respective roles as the horse's owner and trainer. Co-stars include William H. Macy, Elizabeth Banks and real jockey Gary Stevens; historian David McCullough narrates the saga. DVD extras: audio commentary by director Gary Ross and filmmaker Steven Soderbergh; "making-of" documentaries; gallery of set photos taken by Bridges.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"FREAKY FRIDAY": Filmed twice before, this body-switch comedy from the Disney studio reconfirms the adage that the third time's the charm. The latest version's ace is a wonderfully game Jamie Lee Curtis as a conservative, workaholic mom whose soul magically is transported into the body of her daughter (Lindsay Lohan, "The Parent Trap") - and vice versa. Mark Harmon co-stars as Curtis' fiancé, who can't understand the sudden playfulness of the reserved psychiatrist he plans to wed. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; outtakes; alternate ending; music videos.  (PG: AS, P)

"THE LEAGUE OF EXTRAORDINARY GENTLEMEN": They may not be the X-Men, but another group of heroes manages to save the world with their own unique talents in this fanciful adventure. Sean Connery heads the cast as explorer Allan Quatermain, whose allies against an Armageddon-plotting villain include Tom Sawyer (Shane West, "A Walk to Remember"), Mina Harker (Peta Wilson), the Invisible Man (Tony Curran), Dr. Jekyll (Jason Flemyng) and the ever-young Dorian Gray (Stuart Townsend). Captain Nemo (Naseerudin Shah) supplies them with transportation. DVD extras: audio commentaries by producer Trevor Albert, and by other cast and crew; "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: P, V)

"RUGRATS GO WILD!": Two popular Nickelodeon shows merge in this animated feature, as the Rugrats find themselves needing help from "The Wild Thornberrys" after they end up on a deserted island. Nigel Thornberry (voice of Tim Curry) proves of little assistance after an accident leaves him acting like a child, but his daughter Eliza (voice of Lacey Chabert) is much more effective in aiding Tommy Pickles (voice of Elizabeth Daily) and the other Rugrats. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; deleted songs; outtake; alternate ending; interactive game.  (PG: V)

"44 MINUTES": The centerpiece of the 1995 film "Heat" is an extended, vicious gun battle between cops and criminals on the streets of Los Angeles. A similar scenario unfolded for real in 1997, and this TV movie - made for

FX earlier this year and originally subtitled "The North Hollywood Shoot-Out" - dramatizes that dangerous showdown. Michael Madsen, Ron Livingston and Mario Van Peebles play L.A. police officers trying to apprehend two well-armed bank robbers who commit their heist while clad in full body armor.  (R: AS, P, V)

"BOOK OF DAYS": Shortly after his bride's death in a car accident, a man (Wil Wheaton) receives a book listing the dates various people are slated to die. He uses the information to boost his profits as a life-insurance agent, only to be suspected of killing the people named in the book. Originally televised on PAX earlier this year, the drama also stars Deborah Raffin as the widower's mother, an attorney who defends him against the murder charges. Pamela Reed, Richard Grieco and music icon Isaac Hayes also appear.  (PG: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"ALEX & EMMA" (Dec. 23): A creative-blocked writer (Luke Wilson) looks to his new assistant (Kate Hudson) for his muse. (PG-13: AS, P)

"ANYTHING ELSE" (Dec. 23): A comedy writer (Jason Biggs) and an older peer (Woody Allen) vie for an aspiring actress (Christina Ricci). (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE MEDALLION" (Dec. 23): Jackie Chan stars as a Hong Kong sleuth who is imbued with special powers when he wears a medallion, which a villain (Julian Sands) wants. (PG-13: P, V)

"S.W.A.T." (Dec. 30): An elite police force opposes an international terrorist in this update of the television series. Samuel L. Jackson and Colin Farrell star. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

R.E.M. unplugs for holiday episode of 'Boston Public'

So many people are crowded into Doyle's Cafe on the set of Fox's "Boston Public" that, if it were a real pub, the place might be in violation of the fire code.

The occasion is the filming of "Chapter Seventy-Six," the Friday, Dec. 19, episode of the high-school drama, and it's far from business as usual on the soundstages in Manhattan Beach, Calif.

For a few minutes, the outside world disappears, and it's Christmas in New England. Extras and cast members are bundled into sweaters. Festooned in lights, the pub is a re-creation of a real establishment in the Boston suburb of Jamaica Plain. Packed in behind the camera are crew members, writers, producers and office staff.

As teacher Marla Hendricks, Loretta Devine gets up on the tiny stage to introduce the band playing for the Winslow High fund-raiser. As she reads the band's name, Marla suddenly realizes that the supposedly unknown group she corralled into performing is actually none other than R.E.M.

Michael Stipe, Mike Mills and Peter Buck then launch into an acoustic version of their worldwide hit "Losing My Religion." Tucked into a booth, Devine closes her eyes and grooves to the music. Sitting nearby is castmate Jeri Ryan, who plays teacher Ronnie Cook, happily singing along.

"I'm a huge R.E.M. fan," Ryan says after the scene. "I love their music. Every song speaks to me. Michael's voice is beautiful. I was so excited to hear they were doing 'Losing My Religion,' because I love it."

"I'm a groupie anyway. Forget it, there's no acting involved. It's not like I have dialogue and have to be cool, so I'm just going with, 'My character's a big fan of R.E.M.,' because I can't listen to it and not sing along. I've just made the character choice that Ronnie wants to sing, so there."

"Oh, that's sweet," Stipe says when Ryan's comments are relayed to him. "Several of the cast came up and presented themselves. Everyone seemed very nice. We were just very honored to be a part of it. I kept having to look up to realize I wasn't sitting in a real room."

Stipe says R.E.M. - whose songs were recently featured on The WB Network's "Smallville" - had been interested in appearing on a dramatic show to promote its compact disc "In Time: The Best of R.E.M. 1988-2003." The new single, "Bad Day," is also played on the episode's soundtrack.

"They were kind enough to invite us," Stipe says. "It seemed like a good fit."

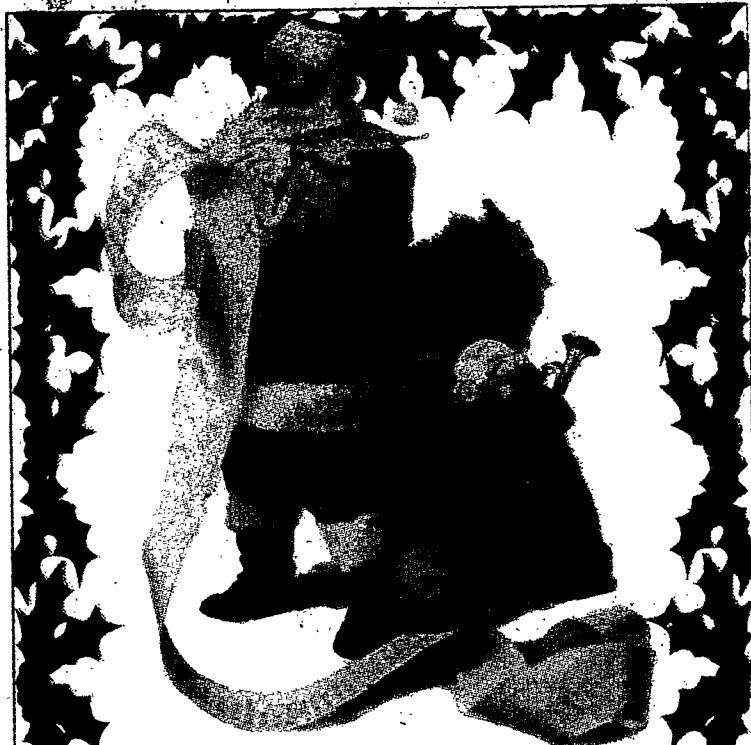

The band also wanted to perform live, unlike most musical acts, which lip-sync to pre-recorded music. "For TV," Stipe says, "it really doesn't work. It always looks a little bit fake. We prefer to do the real thing. However flawed it might be, it's real."

Although R.E.M. is well known for its dedication to good causes, Stipe isn't quite sure that he and his bandmates could be talked into playing in a small pub for a high-school fund-raiser - but maybe.

"It's television writing," he says, "so it's vaguely unlikely that it would happen exactly as it does in that particular episode. But is it out of the question? No, it's not out of the question."

"It's a suspension of disbelief that we all expect from TV and from film, that you would bump into someone and mistake them for an unsigned, unknown band and then realize, once they're onstage, that they're neither unsigned nor unknown. But as a fan of television and film, I like the suspension of disbelief."

The episode even calls for a brief scene with Stipe and Devine. "I was barely acting," he says. "I was just playing myself. Luckily, I was opposite a very good actress, so she carried the scene for me."

Series executive producer Jason Katims wrote the episode with R.E.M. in mind. As he began to flesh out the story, he knew that one of the story lines would deal with student Peter Feldman (Miko Hughes), who suffered an electrical shock in a September episode and has since believed he's Jesus.

"It came up that R.E.M. was potentially interested in doing the show," Katims says. "I was saying, 'We would love it to be an acoustic piece, because it would fit the bar and the venue.' They suggested 'Losing My Religion.'"

"I started thinking, 'Oh my God, I have this story line about this kid who thinks he's Jesus, and they're doing a song about, 'Standing in the corner ... losing my religion.' So when I was writing the episode, I used that as a way to guide me to how to write the story."

"It wound up being something that I thought worked thematically for not only this story line with Peter Feldman, but with other story lines as well. The end of the episode, the plan is to make it this montage of all the story lines coming together."

"So you see them in the bar, then you go to another story line and another and another, then you finally come back to the bar and finish the song. Literally every word of the song is used in the script."

"Knowing not only that R.E.M. was going to be here, but also that it was going to be that particular song, allowed me to really have it woven into the fabric of the episode."

Michael Stipe is joined by his band, R.E.M., in an acoustic rendition of their hit song "Losing My Religion" during a Winslow High fund-raiser in "Boston Public," airing Friday on Fox.
